Answer to the Message Not Acted On.

BAILEY WANTED TO AMEND IT.

He Tried to Tack on Morgan's Cuban Resolution—Dingley Objected and the Matter Went Over—The Senate Appropriated $50,000.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Cuba again engrosses the attention of congress. The public interest in the subject was shown by the great crowds which besieged the galleries throughout the day. Among the occupants of the diplomatic gallery in the senate were Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, and Minister Hatch of Hawaii, and in the reserved gallery was General Dan Sickles, ex-United States minister to Spain. Neither the Spanish legation nor the Cuban bureau in Washington were represented, so far as could be observed. Two phases of the subject were presented. First came the question of relief to destitute and starving Americans in Cuba, and Mr. Morgan's resolution caused spirited debate. The first question was presented in the president's message as soon as the session opened. Immediately following its reading Mr. Davis, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, presented a favorable report on a joint resolution originally introduced by Mr. Gallinger appropriating $50,000 for relief of American citizens in Cuba. It was adopted.

The Morgan Cuban resolution was taken up. At that time the galleries were filled to overflowing, as the crowds awaited something in addition to the relief resolution passed at the outset. The Morgan resolution declares that condition of public war exists in Cuba and that strict neutrality shall be maintained by the United States.

Mr. Morgan stated that unless some senator desired to speak he would ask a yeas and nays vote on the pending motion of Mr. Hale to refer the resolution to the committee on foreign relations.

Mr. Hale suggested the absence of a quorum and a call, after some delay, brought 46 senators, just a quorum, to the senate.

The vote was about to be taken when Mr. Wellington (Rep., Md.) arose for his maiden speech, which proved to be a vigorous protest against the resolution and a plea for its reference to the committee on foreign relations. He said that, while a resolution of belligerency might not be serious, yet the senate should pause and consider the serious results that might follow such a declaration. A new administration has just come into power, he said. Back of it stretched four years of depression and disaster. Capital had been in hiding or had sacrificed its principle as well as its returns. Back of us stretched four years of idleness. The Republican party had come into power on certain propositions. First of these was the question of an adequate tariff bill. He believed the first duty of congress was to the American people rather than to the Cubans and Greeks.

"The policy pursued by the late administration and by Grover Cleveland meets my approval," declared Mr. Wellington, "and as a Republican I am prepared to say that Grover Cleveland did his duty in refusing to rush headlong into a radical Cuban policy."

Mr. Stewart said that he could see no difference between the McKinley administration and the Cleveland administration on foreign questions. The only difference between the two, he said, was one of persons. "Mr. McKinley is a very pleasant gentleman," added Mr. Stewart amid laughter. "I do not intend to draw comparisons, but I merely say that Mr. McKinley is a very pleasant gentleman."

Mr. Stewart argued for the resolution, saying it voiced the sentiment of the American people, who wanted no more of the "Cleveland policy" on Cuba.

Mr. Daniel replied in a sarcastic vein to some of Mr. Wellington's remarks and then read a carefully prepared manuscript involving the legal points in the recognition of belligerency.

After concluding his legal argument Mr. Daniel branched to the general subject of Cuba and aroused the keenest attention by his vigorous words.

The house confronted the Cuban question, made a party issue of it and adjourned without taking any action. President McKinley's message was received without demonstration and on its heels Mr. Hitt asked unanimous consent for consideration of a bill in response to the president's request. Mr. Bailey (Tex.) asked for consent to consider in connection with the bill an amendment embodying Senator Morgan's resolution for recognition of the Cubans as belligerents. Mr. Dingley would not consent to consider the amendment nor Mr. Bailey to consider the bill without the amendment, so for the time, the question was sidetracked.

Then the house devoted two hours to debate on the conference report on the feature of the Indian appropriation bill opening to settlement the gilsonite lands on the Uncompahgre Indian reservation in Utah, refused to accept the compromise agreed upon by the conferees and asked for another conference with the senate on the bill.

In the meantime the senate resolution, practically identical with Mr. Hitt's bill, had been sent to the house and Mr. Hitt asked unanimous consent for its consideration.

The deadlock between Mr. Dingley and Mr. Bailey was re-enacted, and while Mr. Hawley was endeavoring to get consent for the consideration of the two Cuban propositions together Mr. Dingley put in a motion to adjourn. This motion was carried by a vote of 90 to 69, 13 voting present. Under the rule for biweekly sessions recently adopted the adjournment carries the question over to Thursday.

The president's message to congress was as follows:

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States:

"Official information from our consuls in Cuba establishes the fact that a large number of American citizens in the island are in a state of destitution, suffering for want of food and medicines. This applies particularly to the rural districts of the central and eastern parts.

"The agricultural classes have been forced from their farms into the nearest towns, where they are without work or money.

"The local authorities of the several towns, however kindly disposed, are unable to relieve the needs of their own people and are altogether powerless to help our citizens.

"The latest report of Consul General Lee estimates that 600 to 800 Americans are without means of support. I have assured him that provision would be made at once to relieve them. To that end I recommend that congress make an appropriation of not less than $50,000 to be immediately available for use under the direction of the secretary of state.

"It is desirable that a part of the sum which may be appropriated by congress should, in the discretion of the secretary of state, be used for transportation of American citizens who, desiring to return to the United States, are without means to do so.

"WILLIAM MCKINLEY."

BUTTER MARKET ABROAD.

The Agricultural Department Promoting That and Cheese.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The agricultural department is engaged in some practical experiments with a view to extending our butter market abroad. The development of the dairy interests of the United States is one of the favorite schemes of Secretary Wilson, who believes that the farmers of the country can be greatly benefited by the sale of the incident products of the farm. Our foreign cheese market has declined steadily for the past 20 years and in recent years has suffered immense damage from the shipment of "filled cheese" and other inferior cheese.

Now that all our filled cheese must be branded we may regain some of this trade, but at the agricultural department Major Alvord, the chief of the dairy division, says it will require time and circumstances to re-establish the reputation of our cheese and win back the trade we have lost.

The Recalcitrant Broker Must Serve a Term of 25 Days.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—Elvertor R. Chapman, the recalcitrant sugar trust witness, who refused to answer a senate committee's questions as to whether he had acted as a broker for any senators in speculations in sugar trust, occupies a cell at the district jail and will continue therein for 25 days.

COST OF A LEXOW.

Pennsylvania Asked to Pay Over $65,000 For One.

HARRISBURG, May 18.—The state is asked to pay $65,000 for the expenses of the alleged Penrose committee in investigating the alleged abuses in the municipal government of Philadelphia. The bill was presented in the senate by Senator Grady of Philadelphia. It was immediately taken by Senator Mitchell of Jefferson, chairman of the appropriation committee, and reported out of committee.

The corporations were given a whipping in the senate by Senator C. C. Kauffman (Lancaster). He called up the labor organization bill and succeeded in striking out the amendment that the corporations had succeeded in getting in. Under this provision, if a union man struck because he was asked to work with a non-unionist, he would have been guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine and imprisonment. By a vote of 25 to 5, the amendment was taken out.

The Young bill, giving trolley companies the right of eminent domain, was practically killed for this session by the defeat of a resolution to make a special order for second and third reading. The measure was brought before the house by Mr. Young (Tigoga).

A bill appropriating $1,000,000 to rebuild and improve the public roads of the state under the supervisor system proposed by the Hamilton road bill was introduced in the house by Chairman Martin of the committee on agriculture.

The Parshall political expense bill passed second reading by a vote of 74 to 41.

He Says Cuba Must Come First—If Not, He Will Filibuster In Vigorous Non-Senatorial-Dignity Fashion—The House Leaders on Situation.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—There is a possibility of a clash between the friends of the Cuban belligerency resolution and the tariff bill. The advocates of the Cuban resolution apprehend that their opponents will make an effort to prevent a vote before next Monday, when the tariff bill is to be taken up under agreement. Senator Morgan is hopeful of securing a vote before that time. Senator Mason, who is an enthusiastic supporter of the Cuban cause, said that if a vote should be prevented this week by filibustering tactics the tariff bill could not be taken up Monday. "We must have a vote on Cuba before the tariff is considered," he said, "or we shall see some filibustering such as the senate is not used to."

Action by the house on President McKinley's recommendations for the relief of American citizens in Cuba, which was prevented by the rules under which the house is operating, doubtless will be taken at the next meeting of the house on Thursday.

The committee on rules will present a rule fixing time for debate on the resolution adopted by the senate to appropriate $50,000.

Mr. Bailey, the Democratic leader, who endeavored to couple Senator Morgan's resolution for recognizing the belligerency of the insurgents with the bill for an appropriation, proposes to secure a vote on the question by presenting a minority report from the committee on rules, which will make it order to offer the substance of the Morgan resolution as an amendment.

Mr. Dingley said that a minority report could not be made to the house unless it proposed matter germane to the majority report. He doubted, he said, whether a proposition to recognize the insurgents as belligerents could be considered germane to an appropriation for the relief of American citizens.

He doubted, he said, whether a proposition to recognize the insurgents as belligerents could be considered germane to an appropriation for the relief of American citizens.

Mr. Bailey, a member of the committee on rules, took the same view of the matter.

It is not unlikely that Speaker Reed will declare a minority report out of order. The Democrats, however, are determined to bring the house to a vote on the question of recognition of Cuban belligerency.

Mr. Hitt says that the Republicans are willing to meet that question again, although they adopted resolutions declaring themselves in favor of the last house. They do not intend, however, to complicate a simple resolution for an appropriation with the question of belligerency, he says.

Mr. Bailey said that the Republicans did not want to meet the question with a Republican president, who would be put in the position of enforcing or disregarding the recommendation of congress.

He added, when asked if a minority report would be in order, that the Democrats would be tempted to repeat the scenes of the Fifty-first congress if the speaker refused to allow consideration of such a report from the committee on rules.

American Baptist Historical society, Thursday.

American Baptist Publication society, Thursday.

Commission on systematic benevolence, Saturday and Sunday.

American Baptist Missionary union (foreign missions), Monday, May 24, and Tuesday.

During the week, when the financial report of each of the various organizations is made, it is expected that the books will show that the numerous societies and churches have raised a sufficient amount of money to capture the $250,000 offered by John D. Rockefeller to free the missionary societies of debt. The total debt of the organizations aggregated $468,000, and to be come entitled to the gift of Mr. Rockefeller it is necessary that the church raise $326,000. Goodly sums were raised on the occasion of special services in this direction. In addition, sums ranging from $5 to $1,000 and $5,000 have been contributed.

HOT BATTLE RAGING.

Fighting Resumed This Morning at Domokos.

GREEKS MEET A SERIOUS DEFEAT.

Edhem Pasha Continues His Advance, Owing to Greek Movements in Epirus. Greek Government Threatens a Sensational Step Unless Europe Interferes.

LONDON, May 18.—The latest news from the scene of hostilities by way of Athens shows that the battle at Domokos ceased about 9 o'clock last evening, but was resumed this morning. Thus far no account of the fighting has been received from the Turkish side. It is evident, from the Greek account, that the Greeks have suffered a serious defeat, and if the left wing has given away, as appears probable, Edhem Pasha may be able to cut off the Greek retreat and so part General Smolenski at Sourpi from the main army.

This is Edhem Pasha's reply to the foolish attempt of Colonel Manos to snatch a victory in Epirus. If Greece had prevented Manos from playing this last card of a gambler, Turkey might perhaps have ceased hostilities. As it is now, she is in full possession of Thessaly and the powers will find the task of protecting Greece more difficult than ever.

The dispatches from Athens represent the populace as astounded when the news of the fighting came. They had hoped to the last that the powers would prevent Turkey from going further. One report represents the Greek government as threatening to take extreme and desperate steps unless Europe arrests the progress of the invaders.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 18.—The news-papers of this city protest vigorously against the "excessive and unacceptable" conditions which Turkey demands as the price of peace with Greece. They declare that if Turkey insists upon them Europe will be obliged to abandon mediation.

The Novoe Vremya says that in the event of Turkey's insistence upon the terms she has presented the powers will have to take practical measures to "preserve Greece from the pretensions which threatens her national existence."

ATHENS, May 18.—Mr. Railli, when he called at the legations, protested to the ministers against the Turkish attack on Domokos and Almyros, when Greece, at the instance of the powers, was acting purely on the defensive.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 18.—All the powers have agreed to protest against the cession of Thessaly to Turkey.

Presbyterian Commissioners' Visit.

The special train bearing the party will make a stop of three hours in the city to give the commissioners an opportunity of inspecting Wooster university. After a drive over the city dinner will be served at Hoover cottage. Each visitor will be presented a handsome souvenir.

After Indian Murderers.

KINGMAN, A. T., May 18.—The sheriff's posse has returned to White Hills from the chase after Ahvote, the Pinto Indian murderer. They report that the body of Judge J. M. Morton was found in a cabin at Goldbug, seven miles below Eldorado canyon. Ahvote was killed on Cottonwood island, 30 miles below the canyon. The bodies of five of his victims have been found. Deputy Sheriff Rosbrough left here with a posse to arrest Mouz, the other Pinto Indian murderer.

The NEWS REVIEW of East Liverpool,

THE CHIN AS AN INDEX.

Can You Tell a Person's Character by the Shape of His Lower Jaw?

I have read Dr. Leuf's letter on "Physiognomy" in The Medical Council and am prompted to say, in reply to his request for contributions on the "chin:"

Protruding chins characterize men and women of the get there type. Successful people usually carry their chins thrust forward, with compressed lips. This chin, if heavy, with broad rami and swelling masseters, indicates fighting blood.

A retreating chin shows lack of force, mentally, morally and physically; usually of the yielding sort; soon discouraged; desires protection; small executive force. The development of other faculties often makes up for this defect.

A small, well rounded chin, with mobile and red cushion of flesh upon, indicates a pleasure loving owner. If dimpled, all the more so, for dimpled chins belong to coquettes. People with dimples love to be petted and loved; like admiration and praise. Generally fickle. Usually this chin is healthy, recuperative and long lived.

Broad chins signify nobleness and large dignity, unless vertically thin, when, if with it there be thin lips of bloodless kind, you find cruelty.

Square chins with little flesh denote firmness and executive ability. These make good haters.

Drunkards usually have a circular line about their chins.

Slovens have wrinkles about their chins.

Long, thin chins are poetical, unstable and delicate in constitution. Such people are subject to bowel derangements. If thin through the angles of the mouth, too, they are prone to tuberculosis. Generally short lived.

Medium chins with a suggestive bifurcation in the center, with small mounds of flesh on either side, characterize generosity, impulsiveness, cheery natures. (The same sized chins, with a dab of flesh just under the center of the lower lip, indicate meanness, selfishness, brutality.)

N. B.—No one feature can be taken in judging character. Often development of other faculties of mind or feature entirely governs. In each case take the "totality of indications" before judging.—St. Louis Clinique.

ROBERT BURNS.

The Poet's First Love and the Verses in Which He Praised Her.

Robert Burns, the Scottish poet, was born at Mount Oliphant, Jan. 25, 1759, near Ayr, in a clay built cottage, reared by his father's own hands. When a lad of 18, the family moved to Lochlea. His first three or four years at Lochlea were still with the poet times of innocence, and "his conduct was governed by the strictest rules of virtue and modesty." At last he set his affections on a young woman named Ellison Begbie, the daughter of a small farmer, and asked her to be his wife, but he could not prevail on her to marry him, and this disappointment had a malign influence over the poet. Long afterward, when he had seen much of the world, Burns spoke of this girl as, of all those on whom he ever fixed his fickle affections, the one most likely to have made a pleasant partner for life. It was to her he addressed the pure and beautiful love lyric "Mary Morison," and in these lines the lyric genius of Burns was for the first time undeniably revealed:

Yestreen when to the trembling string
The dance gaed through the lighted ha'.
To thee my fancy took its wing.
I sat, but neither heard nor saw,
Though this was fair and that was braw
And yon the toast of a' the town.
I sighed and said amang them a',
"Ye are nae Mary Morison."

Oh, Mary, canst thou wreck his peace
Wha for thy sake would gladly dee?
Or canst thou break that heart of his
Whase only fault is loving thee?
If love for love thou wilt not gie,
At least be pity to me shown.
A thought ungentle canna be
The thought of Mary Morison.

Diet and Hair.

The relation of the diet to the hair has been tested by good authority. A diet consisting of beef, starchy materials and milk causes atrophy of the roots and falling of the hair. Probably no article of diet nourishes the hair so well as oats. A bald headed Scotchman who takes his porridge regularly is a rarity. The poorest diet for the hair is milk. It is claimed that the loss of hair as the result of fever is largely due to the habit of feeding the patient almost exclusively on milk diet, and it will be interesting to note the cases where those having fine heads of hair are known to live principally upon vegetable and grain foods.

TRACKS WERE CHARGED

Horses Knocked Down on the Wellsville Road.

REPAIRS ARE BEING MADE

But Until the Work Is Done It Is by No Means Pleasant to Drive Along the Electric Line—Amusing Incidents by the Dozen.

Teamsters have been having a hard time of it on the Wellsville road, and some of them have not regained their usual frame of mind so startling were some of their experiences.

The trouble was caused because the street railway tracks were charged with electricity. When a horse happened to touch the rail he felt it. Some were knocked down and others ran away, and in every instance there was more or less excitement. It is said that five horses were knocked down on Sunday, and a number yesterday. Several runaways from this cause dashed along the Wellsville road Saturday, and at least one man sustained injury on account of the track. Parties living in that vicinity say that the tracks have been in this condition since the slides earlier in the spring, and all the accidents have happened near Brady's bend. The cause can easily be traced, and Foreman Hickey is now making repairs. It will soon be so arranged that there will be no danger.

MAKING HIMSELF HEARD.

Doctor Stewart Said Some Pointed Things of Cards.

Doctor Stewart, formerly presiding elder of this conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, continues to create commotions in Cleveland. Not long ago he gave utterance to some caustic comments on dancing, and the other day went after the Dorcas society of his church for playing cards.

"If the members of that society play for prizes they not only use the instruments of gamblers, but they become gamblers. In that case they break a specific statute which ordains that men must not play games for articles of value," is the way he put it.

STOP THIS SCORCHING.

The Police Should Arrest Every Guilty Rider.

EDITOR NEWS REVIEW—I am a wheeler, man, but when I ride it is solely for pleasure. A few years ago I could take a trip through the city without danger of having my neck broken, but I can't do it now. The scorehers have made it impossible. They own the streets, and not only endanger life, but make it impossible for a lawabiding man to ride with any degree of comfort. Where are the police? What has become of that "determination to stop fast riding?" Why is not the ordinance enforced.

A WHEELMAN.

PROPERTY OWNER IS LIABLE

For All the Evil Deeds of His Wicked Tenants.

Parties who know gambling is being carried on in buildings they rent will be interested in knowing that the supreme court has handed down a decision in another case under a law like the Winn law, which holds the landlord liable for the evil deeds of tenants. In this case the property owner is held liable for losses at gambling thereon. The cashier of a company lost $7,600 of the firm's money, and the premises where the gambling place was located are held for the amount.

TOOLS IN THE WELL.

More Trouble For East Liverpool Oil Hunters.

The local company, who drilled a well near Darlington and were compelled to abandon it because of the salt water, recently started another well and are meeting with additional trouble. The second hole was started near the first, but recently the tools were lost, and now the drillers have a fishing job on their hands. The first well was a producer, but the flow of salt water was so strong abandonment was necessary.

Excursion tickets will be on sale over these lines May 17 to 25, inclusive. Details regarding rates, time of trains, etc., may be obtained by applying to nearest Pennsylvania line ticket agent, or addressing F. Van Dusen, chief assistant general passenger agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

SLANG OF COLLEGE GIRLS.

The "Crush" "Dead Squelch" and Other Terms Expressive of Student Life.

College girl slang is not often heard outside of college walls. To outsiders it is chiefly interesting because it gives glimpses of college life. Take the word "prod," for example. A "prod" would scarcely be met with except in the college world, although prodigies might.

It is always a question whether a girl who is called a "prod" receives the term in approbation or disgust. There are two sorts of "prods," one receiving the term from pure brilliancy in some particular line, the other for general studiousness. The latter are the most irritating, for they are always ready with answers in recitations, while the brilliant "prod" may be on the ordinary plane of intelligence when out of her particular sphere. She is a "prod" through no fault of her own. A distinctly woman's collegiate word is "crush," expressing a relationship between two girls hard to define. One girl, generally an underclassman and usually a freshman, becomes much attached to another girl, ordinarily an upperclass girl. The younger girl is "crushed" on the other, sends her flowers and tries in various ways to give expression to her admiration. The "crush" soon passes over, the admirer finding some flaw in her idol, or else, as is often the case, the "crush" at length loses its youthful sentimentality and settles down into a good friendship.

If, however, before either of these states are reached the object of the "crush" gets weary of the devotion, she resorts to what in college parlance is known as "squelching," the highest form of which is a "d. s.," or "dead squelch." This method indeed has often to be employed toward freshmen, whether "crushed" or not, to teach them their proper place. There is an unwritten but well established decree that upper class girls shall always be held as superiors. At the first of the year, for instance, before the entering class is thoroughly at home, it would be a decided breach of etiquette for a freshman to ask a mighty senior or junior to dance. She must wait to be invited. But the freshmen—well, they don't understand all these important points, but a judicious use of the "dead squelch" will teach them a good deal.

In much the same category with slang are the abbreviations rife at college. Literature is always "lit," psychology "psych," dictionary "dic." The abbreviation most in the minds of the girls at present is that dreaded monster, "exams." Volumes might be written concerning the blue state of the atmosphere during the time when every one is looking forward to the "exams." In the corridors may be heard such questions as "How many 'exams' have you got?" "Do you think we'll have one in 'lit'?" Then with gloomy foreboding, "Oh, I'm so afraid I'll flunk." Then the synonyms for hard work come into play, "grind," "dig" and "bone."

BIRDS AND KITES.

The Feathered Creatures Cannot Understand the Strange Fliers.

Many amusing experiences have been the lot of the scientists who have been manipulating kites for scientific purposes, says the Chicago News. Large birds are always interested in the strange devices floating in the air and cannot quite make out what they are.

Prompted by sharp curiosity, they hover around the floating kite and subject themselves to the danger of becoming entangled in the silken string and being dragged down to earth.

No bird, however, has ever alighted on a kite or attacked one. While one scientist was flying a train of five kites a couple of years ago a large, silver tipped eagle came suddenly out of the higher air and swooped round and round the first kite, looking against the sunset sky like a huge silver ball. As the train of kites was pulled in the eagle followed, visiting one kite and then another, seeming uncertain just what to do. In a few minutes, when he seemed to have decided that they were not good to eat, and he knew nothing about them, anyway, he indignantly flew off and was lost to view.

Another experience was had with a stork that came from the New Jersey side of the Hudson and flew straight for the queer object in the air. He apparently had made up his mind to go straight through it, but changed and dove underneath. He went around and above it, and through a glass it could be seen that he cocked his eye at the intruder in a most comical manner. He started away a few hundred feet, changed his mind, and came swooping back. He finally reluctantly went away, mystified over this queer addition to the inhabitants of the air.

While kites were high in the air one March flocks of geese flying in the wedge flew over. They invariably stopped, broke up, hovered above the queer object, and at last slowly reformed and flew away. While the larger birds all come from heights above the kite, the small birds of the air will alight on the string holding the kite and sway to and fro.

A CRUEL CUT.

"I have seen better days," began the mendicant.

"So have I," said the approached hastily.

"But I don't think this rain will last long."—Detroit Free Press.

A Pretty Resort.

A sojourn at Winona Assembly Grounds at Eagle Lake, Ind., near Warsaw, on the Fort Wayne route, will prove a pleasant summer outing. This delightful resort is the site of the youngest of the Chautauqua assemblies, and its attractions combine facilities for recreation, entertainment, instruction and devotion.

Eagle Lake is a beautiful sheet of water, surrounded by several hundred acres of romantic woodland which covers one stretch of nearly two miles. The lake affords opportunity for aquatic pastimes, the boating, bathing and fishing being excellent. In addition to numerous row-boats there are several pleasure steamers on the lake.

The shady grounds are occupied by many pretty cottages and summer homes of persons who annually enjoy the beauties of the place, strengthening body in the invigorating atmosphere and enriching the mind by the special advantages the summer school offers.

A fine park has been laid out on the shore of the lake. A large auditorium, amphitheatre, college halls, hotels and restaurant have also been constructed on the grounds for the accommodation of visitors. There is also a race track and space set aside for out-door athletic sports.

In addition to the Presbyterian General Assembly which will be in session on the Assembly Grounds from May 20 to June 2, a number of other large meetings will be held on the grounds during the summer of 1897, including the Indiana State Sunday School Convention, Western Association of Writers, Indiana State W. C. T. U., Indiana Y. M. C. A., Encampment, National Medical Society, Boys' Brigade, and Indiana State Christian Endeavor Convention.

Excursion tickets to Eagle Lake will be on sale via Pennsylvania Lines during the summer season. Details regarding rates, time of trains, etc., may be ascertained by addressing the nearest passenger or ticket agent of the Pennsylvania lines, or by applying to F. Van Dusen, chief assistant general passenger agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Full information concerning the Assembly and Summer School, cost of entertainment, etc., may be secured upon application to Secretary S. L. C. Dickey, Eagle Lake, Ind.

New Entrance to New York.

All are convenient locations; Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, in the down town district, and Twenty-third street in the uptown district. The latter entrance will be formally opened May 16, when two new, commodious ferryboats, double-deckers, constructed especially for the Pennsylvania lines and furnished and fitted in up-to-date style, will be placed in service between the Jersey City station and Twenty-third street, connecting with all inbound and outbound trains over the Pennsylvania system, the same as the boats running between that station and Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, which will also continue in the service.

The Pennsylvania lines' three entrances into New York enable passengers to quickly reach the business portion in the lower end of the city, as well as the hotels and business blocks in the very heart of the great metropolis. The ride across the river is a delightful and refreshing termination to an enjoyable trip. All through trains from the west, over the Pennsylvania lines, land passengers to quickly reach the business portion in the lower end of the city, as well as the hotels and business blocks in the very heart of the great metropolis. ## THE LITTLE WHITE WAGON.

The little white wagon was passing by. Can it be but an hour—an hour ago Since Edith's prattle hurt me so? When it caught her wondering baby eye? "Pitty with wadon! Oh, see!" she said. "Yook! Ponies too! Oh, how I wish I could get up an wide on a wadon like 'is!"

And my heart stopped, so, as I thought of her, dead!

The little white wagon was passing by, A sight that is common enough, you say. "No! No! No! Not till today Had I known how it looks to a mother's eye. With its white, false face to her black grief wed, Crushing her heart with its juggernaut wheels. Not till today had I thought how it feels To be stabbed by the hush where a babe lies dead.

The little white wagon was passing by, My God! Can it be but an hour ago? How would the age long seconds flow Into minutes unending were she to die? So I clasp and love her as never before. One thought, one hope, is my frightened cry— That the little white wagon may still go by And never stop at my darkened door. —J. L. Heaton in "The Quilting Bee."

CUSTOMS IN BELGIUM.

Oddities In Home Life and Dress That Started an English Woman.

Breakfast in Belgium proceeds in courses, with a change of plates at each service, but not a change of knives and forks. These implements must be used through successive courses, however dissimilar, resting between whiles on glass or silver holders, placed beside each cover. The holders, alas, I often forgot to employ, sending my knife and fork out on my plate, to the maid's confusion and my own dismay. An English woman, long resident in Brussels, invited me to dinner with the cheering assurance: "We are English, not Belgian, in our ways. We change the knives and forks."

Meats and the fruits to which we are accustomed are dear in Belgium, but Yankee products grace many tables.

"I don't know what we should do without your beef extracts for sauces and your California tinned fruits," observed my hostess at a charming breakfast. "Feel at home," said another lady pleasantly. "Here is some manse pea." As her pronunciation and the dish itself—a so called mince pie—resembled nothing familiar to my ear or vision. I was baffled for the moment as to the nature of her kind intentions.

If I visited a weaving school at 8 in the morning, when all the men were yet in that startling home undress which prevails in some households before the formal dejeuner, the wife of the weaving master would press me, "Prenez quelque chose, je vous en prie, mademoiselle." I called early one day on a secretary at Charleroi, with whom I had business, hearing that he was about to leave town. He was out on the street. "But he can't have gone far," protested his son, "for he hasn't dressed himself yet." Which alarming statement proved too true, as I soon discovered when an apparition appeared on the threshold, unwashed, uncombed, with overcoat and neckhandkerchief by no means concealing the unmistakable loose nightrobe beneath. So suggestive was the spectacle that, declining the unembarrassed entreaties of monsieur's spouse, "Pray take something, mademoiselle," I dispatched my inquiries and fled.—Clare de Graffenreid in Harper's Magazine.

Wanted to Be Called a Gentleman.

There was a slight of hand performance in the opera house that night, and way down on one of the front seats there sat a man holding a shiny silk hat ostentatiously before him with an expression of deep anxiety and watchfulness upon his face.

Before the performance began a friend who sat immediately behind him had noticed his manner leaned over and asked him what the trouble was.

"Well, you see, Tom," said the man with the hat confidentially, "it's this way: I've been in politics now for ten years, and I've been cussed and abused and called all sorts of hard names until I'm just longing to hear somebody address me in a decent manner one more time. When this magician comes on the stage, he's going to say, 'Will some gentleman kindly loan me his hat?' and I'm going to jump up and give him mine. It'll make me feel good for a month to be spoken to that way. I've been looking forward to this occasion for two weeks. You'll excuse me now, for I'll have to jump quick when he speaks for I see one of our aldermen sitting on the front row with his old brown derby in his hand, and I'll bet a dollar he's up to the same game."—Detroit Free Press.

The Clock Came Back.

A Louisville man has a cow with a peculiar appetite. A housecleaning servant left a small silver clock on the kitchen step for a few moments, and on her return the timepiece was missing. Later in the evening the small boy of the household was in the yard. Suddenly a silvery chime floated on his ear. He listened. Another and another, until five times the chime had sounded, and he recognized it as coming from the lost clock. There was nothing near but the cow. The boy searched all around the yard and then concluded that the clock was in the cow. For awhile there was a sort of pandemonium. At 6 o'clock the family heard the hour tolled from the cow's inside. A powerful emetic did the work. The clock was a little discolored, but was still ticking.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Yoke Fellows.

Many women work too hard. There is no question about that. If they did not have love for a yoke-fellow they could never endure the daily, hourly grind and drudgery of life. But they bear it cheerfully, sustained by loving thoughts of husband and children.

But when physical weakness or disease is added to a woman's burden it becomes altogether too heavy. No woman can be cheerful or hopeful who is dragged by continual pain and physical wretchedness.

The special weaknesses peculiar to the feminine organism are comparatively easy to overcome if the earlier symptoms are given proper attention. But if allowed to go unchecked, they are liable to develop into serious, chronic complications.

Any woman afflicted with these delicate ailments ought to have the immediate aid of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a perfect and unfailing specific for all diseases of the feminine organs. It was devised for this one purpose, and accomplished this purpose as no other medicine has ever done.

For nearly 30 years Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., where in conjunction with his staff of associate specialists, he has successfully treated many thousand cases of "female complaint."

No physician living has had a more extended opportunity to study this class of diseases in actual practice. No medicine ever invented has done for women what his "Favorite Prescription" has.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure constipation.

Some People We Know, and We Will Profit by Hearing about Them.

This is a purely local event. It took place in East Liverpool, Not in Buffalo or Boston. You are asked to investigate it; Asked to believe a citizen's word, To confirm a citizen's statement.

Any article that is endorsed at home That obtains resident advocates, Is more worthy of confidence Than a far-off foreign article, Testified to by unknown people.

During the Civil War, Mr. Wm. Anderson, of 305 Lisbon street, enlisted and served three years in the 43d Ohio Infantry. From the exposure during the war he attributes his late trouble which bothered him more or less ever since, some attacks being much worse than others. "Severe aching," says he, "and weakness in the loins so bad at times that I could scarcely get around, and muscular rheumatism of recent years, all seemed to have centered in my kidneys. In the mornings when first getting up I was very dizzy until I had moved around for a time, and my nervous system became affected, causing a fluttering and fullness around the heart. Seeing an advertisement in the review, I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy, and took them. The first few doses gave me relief. The improvement was gradual, but continual, as the medicine got more thoroughly in the system. I firmly believe Doan's Kidney Pills will in every case, as they did in mine, prove the justness of the claims made for them."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

TRACKS WERE CHARGED

Horses Knocked Down on the Wellsville Road.

REPAIRS ARE BEING MADE

But Until the Work Is Done It Is by No Means Pleasant to Drive Along the Electric Line—Amusing Incidents by the Dozen.

Teamsters have been having a hard time of it on the Wellsville road, and some of them have not regained their usual frame of mind so startling were some of their experiences.

The trouble was caused because the street railway tracks were charged with electricity. When a horse happened to touch the rail he felt it. Some were knocked down and others ran away, and in every instance there was more or less excitement. It is said that five horses were knocked down on Sunday, and a number yesterday. Several runaways from this cause dashed along the Wellsville road Saturday, and at least one man sustained injury on account of the track. Parties living in that vicinity say that the tracks have been in this condition since the slides earlier in the spring, and all the accidents have happened near Brady's bend. The cause can easily be traced, and Foreman Hickey is now making repairs. It will soon be so arranged that there will be no danger.

MAKING HIMSELF HEARD.

Doctor Stewart Said Some Pointed Things of Cards.

Doctor Stewart, formerly presiding elder of this conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, continues to create commotions in Cleveland. Not long ago he gave utterance to some caustic comments on dancing, and the other day went after the Dorcas society of his church for playing cards.

"If the members of that society play for prizes they not only use the instruments of gamblers, but they become gamblers. In that case they break a specific statute which ordains that men must not play games for articles of value," is the way he put it.

STOP THIS SCORCHING.

The Police Should Arrest Every Gusty Rider.

EDITOR NEWS REVIEW—I am a wheeler, but when I ride it is solely for pleasure. A few years ago I could take a trip through the city without danger of having my neck broken, but I can't do it now. The scorches have made it impossible. They own the streets, and not only endanger life, but make it impossible for a law-abiding man to ride with any degree of comfort. Where are the police? What has become of that "determination to stop fast riding?" Why is not the ordinance enforced.

A WHEELMAN.

PROPERTY OWNER IS LIABLE
For All the Evil Deeds of His Wicked Tenants.

Parties who know gambling is being carried on in buildings they rent will be interested in knowing that the supreme court has handed down a decision in another case under a law like the Winn law, which holds the landlord liable for the evil deeds of tenants. In this case the property owner is held liable for losses at gambling thereon. The cashier of a company lost $7,600 of the firm's money, and the premises where the gambling place was located are held for the amount.

TOOLS IN THE WELL.

More Trouble For East Liverpool Oil Hunters.

The local company, who drilled a well near Darlington and were compelled to abandon it because of the salt water, recently started another well and are meeting with additional trouble. The second hole was started near the first, but recently the tools were lost, and now the drillers have a fishing job on their hands. The first well was a producer, but the flow of salt water was so strong abandonment was necessary.

(Winona Assembly Grounds, Eagle lake) where the Presbyterian General Assembly will meet this year, is on the Fort Wayne route of the Pennsylvania lines, over which passengers are landed at the entrance to the grounds. Excursion tickets will be on sale over these lines May 17 to 25, inclusive. Details regarding rates, time of trains, etc., may be obtained by applying to nearest Pennsylvania line ticket agent, or addressing F. Van Dusen, chief assistant general passenger agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

SLANG OF COLLEGE GIRLS.

The "Crush" "Dead Squelch" and Other Terms Expressive of Student Life.

College girl slang is not often heard outside of college walls. To outsiders it is chiefly interesting because it gives glimpses of college life. Take the word "prod," for example. A "prod" would scarcely be met with except in the college world, although prodigies might.

It is always a question whether a girl who is called a "prod" receives the term in approbation or disgust. There are two sorts of "prods," one receiving the term from pure brilliancy in some particular line, the other for general studiousness. The latter are the most irritating, for they are always ready with answers in recitations, while the brilliant "prod" may be on the ordinary plane of intelligence when out of her particular sphere. She is a "prod" through no fault of her own.

A distinctly woman's collegiate word is "crush," expressing a relationship between two girls hard to define. One girl, generally an underclassman and usually a freshman, becomes much attached to another girl, ordinarily an upperclass girl. The younger girl is "crushed" on the other, sends her flowers and tries in various ways to give expression to her admiration.

The "crush" soon passes over, the admirer finding some flaw in her idol, or else, as is often the case, the "crush" at length loses its youthful sentimentality and settles down into a good friendship.

If, however, before either of these states are reached the object of the "crush" gets weary of the devotion, she resorts to what in college parlance is known as "squelching," the highest form of which is a "d. s.," or "dead squelch." This method indeed has often to be employed toward freshmen, whether "crushed" or not, to teach them their proper place. There is an unwritten but well established decree that upper class girls shall always be held as superiors. At the first of the year, for instance, before the entering class is thoroughly at home, it would be a decided breach of etiquette for a freshman to ask a mighty senior or junior to dance. She must wait to be invited. But the freshmen—well, they don't understand all these important points, but a judicious use of the "dead squelch" will teach them a good deal.

In much the same category with slang are the abbreviations rife at college. Literature is always "lit," psychology "psych," dictionary "dic." The abbreviation most in the minds of the girls at present is that dreaded monster, "exams." Volumes might be written concerning the blue state of the atmosphere during the time when every one is looking forward to the "exams." In the corridors may be heard such questions as "How many 'exams' have you got?" "Do you think we'll have one in 'lit'?" Then with gloomy foreboding, "Oh, I'm so afraid I'll flunk." Then the synonyms for hard work come into play, "grind," "dig" and "bone." —New York Sun.

BIRDS AND KITES.

The Feathered Creatures Cannot Understand the Strange Fliers.

Many amusing experiences have been the lot of the scientists who have been manipulating kites for scientific purposes, says the Chicago News. Large birds are always interested in the strange devices floating in the air and cannot quite make out what they are.

Prompted by sharp curiosity, they hover around the floating kite and subject themselves to the danger of becoming entangled in the silken string and being dragged down to earth.

No bird, however, has ever alighted on a kite or attacked one. While one scientist was flying a train of five kites a couple of years ago a large, silver tipped eagle came suddenly out of the higher air and swooped round and round the first kite, looking against the sunset sky like a huge silver ball. As the train of kites was pulled in the eagle followed, visiting one kite and then another, seeming uncertain just what to do. In few minutes, when he seemed to have decided that they were not good to eat, and he knew nothing about them, anyway, he indignantly flew off and was lost to view.

Another experience was had with a stork that came from the New Jersey side of the Hudson and flew straight for the queer object in the air. He apparently had made up his mind to go straight through it, but changed and dove underneath. He went around and above it, and through a glass it could be seen that he cocked his eye at the intruder in a most comical manner. He started away a few hundred feet, changed his mind, and came swooping back. He finally reluctantly went away, mystified over this queer addition to the inhabitants of the air.

While kites were high in the air one March flocks of geese flying in the wedge flew over. They invariably stopped, broke up, hovered above the queer object, and at last slowly reformed and flew away. While the larger birds all come from heights above the kite, the small birds of the air will alight on the string holding the kite and sway to and fro.

A CRUEL CUT.

"I have seen better days," began the mendicant.

"So have I," said the approached hastily.

A Pretty Resort.

A sojourn at Winona Assembly Grounds at Eagle Lake, Ind., near Warsaw, on the Fort Wayne route, will prove a pleasant summer outing. This delightful resort is the site of the youngest of the Chautauqua assemblies, and its attractions combine facilities for recreation, entertainment, instruction and devotion.

Eagle Lake is a beautiful sheet of water, surrounded by several hundred acres of romantic woodland which covers one stretch of nearly two miles. The lake affords opportunity for aquatic pastimes, the boating, bathing and fishing being excellent. In addition to numerous row-boats there are several pleasure steamers on the lake.

The shady grounds are occupied by many pretty cottages and summer homes of persons who annually enjoy the beauties of the place, strengthening body in the invigorating atmosphere and enriching the mind by the special advantages the summer school offers.

A fine park has been laid out on the shore of the lake. A large auditorium, amphitheatre, college halls, hotels and restaurant have also been constructed on the grounds for the accommodation of visitors. There is also a race track and space set aside for out-door athletic sports.

In addition to the Presbyterian General Assembly which will be in session on the Assembly Grounds from May 20 to June 2, a number of other large meetings will be held on the grounds during the summer of 1897, including the Indiana State Sunday School Convention, Western Association of Writers, Indiana State W. C. T. U., Indiana Y. M. C. A., Encampment, National Medical Society, Boys' Brigade, and Indiana State Christian Endeavor Convention.

Excursion tickets to Eagle Lake will be on sale via Pennsylvania Lines during the summer season. Details regarding rates, time of trains, etc., may be ascertained by addressing the nearest passenger or ticket agent of the Pennsylvania lines, or by applying to F. Van Dusen, chief assistant general passenger agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Full information concerning the Assembly and Summer School, cost of entertainment, etc., may be secured upon application to Secretary S. C. Dickey, Eagle Lake, Ind. *

New Entrance to New York.

All are convenient locations; Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, in the downtown district, and Twenty-third street in the uptown district. The latter entrance will be formally opened May 16, when two new, commodious ferryboats, double-deckers, constructed especially for the Pennsylvania lines and furnished and fitted in up-to-date style, will be placed in service between the Jersey City station and Twenty-third street, connecting with all inbound and outbound trains over the Pennsylvania system, the same as the boats running between that station and Cortlandt street and Desbrosses street, which will also continue in the service.

The Pennsylvania lines' three entrances into New York enable passengers to quickly reach the business portion in the lower end of the city, as well as the hotels and business blocks in the very heart of the great metropolis. The ride across the river is a delightful and refreshing termination to an enjoyable trip. All through trains from the west, over the Pennsylvania lines, land passengers in New York between 9:30 a. m., and 9:30 p. m., treating them to a grand view of the city's water front; its extensive docks where at almost any time may be seen ships of many nations. The wonderful panorama gives visitors a slight idea of the magnitude of New York. The new Twenty-third street ferry line is particularly noteworthy in this respect. *

Summer Outing.

The principal places of summer sojourn along the Atlantic ocean in the Alleghenies, the Adirondacks, Catskills, and mountains of the east, and in the lake region and Northern Michigan and the northwest, may be readily reached over the Pennsylvania lines.

Special information regarding the leading resorts and the advantages enjoyed in journeying to them over the Pennsylvania route has been compiled and printed in convenient form. The matter is profusely illustrated with photographic reproductions of seashore scenes and includes views at Atlantic City, Cape May, Long Branch and other resorts along the Atlantic coast; also of Cresson, Bedford Springs, and romantic mountain retreats, and of Petoskey, Mackinac, and the summer havens in Michigan and the northwest.

Persons contemplating summer outing trips will find it a valuable guide in shaping preliminaries. Copies may be obtained by addressing D. C. MacWatters, district passenger agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

THE LITTLE WHITE WAGON.

The little white wagon was passing by. Can it be but an hour—an hour ago Since Edith's prattle hurt me so When it caught her wondering baby eye? "Pity white wadon! Oh, see!" she said. "Yook! Ponies too! Oh, how I wish I could get up an wide on a wadon like 'is!"

And my heart stopped, so, as I thought of her, dead!

The little white wagon was passing by, A sight that is common enough, you say.

No! No! No! Not till today

Had I known how it looks to a mother's eye,

With its white, false face to her black grief wed,

Crushing her heart with its juggernaut wheels,

Not till today had I thought how it feels

To be stabbed by the hush where a babe lies dead.

The little white wagon was passing by,

My God! Can it be but an hour ago?

How would the age long seconds flow

Into minutes unending were she to die?

So I clasp and love her as never before.

One thought, one hope, is my frightened cry—

That the little white wagons may still go by

And never stop at my darkened door.

—J. L. Heaton in "The Quilting Bee."

CUSTOMS IN BELGIUM.

Oddities In Home Life and Dress That Startled an English Woman.

Breakfast in Belgium proceeds in courses, with a change of plates at each service, but not a change of knives and forks. These implements must be used through successive courses, however dissimilar, resting between whiles on glass or silver holders, placed beside each cover. The holders, alas, I often forgot to employ, sending my knife and fork out on my plate, to the maid's confusion and my own dismay. An English woman, long resident in Brussels, invited me to dinner with the cheering assurance: "We are English, not Belgian, in our ways. We change the knives and forks."

Meats and the fruits to which we are accustomed are dear in Belgium, but Yankee products grace many tables. "I don't know what we should do without your beef extracts for sauces and your California tinned fruits," observed my hostess at a charming breakfast. "Feel at home," said another lady pleasantly. "Here is some manse pea." As her pronunciation and the dish itself—a so called mince pie—resembled nothing familiar to my ear or vision I was baffled for the moment as to the nature of her kind intentions.

If I visited a weaving school at 8 in the morning, when all the men were yet in that startling home undress which prevails in some households before the formal dejeuner, the wife of the weaving master would press me, "Prenez quelque chose, je vous en prie, mademoiselle." I called early one day on a secretary at Charleroi, with whom I had business, hearing that he was about to leave town. He was out on the street. "But he can't have gone far," protested his son, "for he hasn't dressed himself yet." Which alarming statement proved too true, as I soon discovered when an apparition appeared on the threshold, unwashed, uncombed, with overcoat and neckhandkerchief by no means concealing the unmistakable loose nightrobe beneath. So suggestive was the spectacle that, declining the unembarrassed entreaties of monsieur's spouse, "Pray take something, mademoiselle," I dispatched my inquiries and fled. —Clare de Graffenreid in Harper's Magazine.

Wanted to Be Called a Gentleman.

There was a slight of hand performance in the opera house that night, and way down on one of the front seats there sat a man holding a shiny silk hat ostentatiously before him with an expression of deep anxiety and watchfulness upon his face. Before the performance began a friend who sat immediately behind him had noticed his manner leaned over and asked him what the trouble was. "Well, you see, Tom," said the man with the hat confidentially, "it's this way: I've been in politics now for ten years, and I've been cussed and abused and called all sorts of hard names until I'm just longing to hear somebody address me in a decent manner one more time. When this magician comes on the stage, he's going to say, 'Will some gentleman kindly loan me his hat?' and I'm going to jump up and give him mine. It'll make me feel good for a month to be spoken to that way. I've been looking forward to this occasion for two weeks. You'll excuse me now, for I'll have to jump quick when he speaks for I see one of our aldermen sitting on the front row with his old brown derby in his hand, and I'll bet a dollar he's up to the same game." —Detroit Free Press.

Yoke Fellows.

Many women work too hard. There is no question about that. If they did not have love for a yoke-fellow they could never endure the daily, hourly grind and drudgery of life. But they bear it cheerfully, sustained by loving thoughts of husband and children.

But when physical weakness or disease is added to a woman's burden it becomes altogether too heavy. No woman can be cheerful or hopeful who is dragged down by continual pain and physical wretchedness.

The special weaknesses peculiar to the feminine organism are comparatively easy to overcome if the earlier symptoms are given proper attention. But if allowed to go unchecked, they are liable to develop into serious, chronic complications.

Any woman afflicted with these delicate ailments ought to have the immediate aid of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is a perfect and unfailing specific for all diseases of the feminine organs. It was devised for this one purpose, and accomplishes this purpose as no other medicine has ever done.

For nearly 30 years Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., where in conjunction with his staff of associate specialists, he has successfully treated many thousand cases of "female complaint."

No physician living has had a more extended opportunity to study this class of diseases in actual practice. No medicine ever invented has done for women what his "Favorite Prescription" has.

KENTUCKY FIGHT COMPROMISED.

Senator Goebel and Lieutenant Governor Worthington Compromise.

FRANKFORT, Ky., May 18.—The sealed doors were thrown open at the regular time and President Pro Tem. Goebel took the chair to keep it till five minutes before 3 o'clock, when the Worthington senate was to meet and when it was feared that a possible difficulty over possession of the chair might ensue. A few minutes later

Lieutenant Governor Worthington came into the hall and went up to the chair. Senator Goebel talked pleasantly to him and then called up Senator Bronston.

It developed at once that a compromise had been reached that the Lieutenant Governor concluding he might have been wrong in resuming the chair before the appeal from his decision was acted upon and that he had agreed to let things proceed in the regular way. The agreement was that both senates should meet and adjourn till today at 11 o'clock, when Senator Goebel shall be in the chair and the appeal still pending. The journal will then begin where the clerk ceased to act. This means that the silver minority has won; that all the majority is not as warmly for the fusion bill as they seem and it will not be passed.

The state witnessed for a time the spectacle of two separate bodies sitting in session in same hall and each claiming to be the senate of Kentucky. The fight over the Stephenson fusion bill was renewed and the advocates of the bill were confident of its passage. The silver Democrats insisting that Lieutenant Governor Worthington vacate the chair pending an appeal from one of his decisions by Senator Bronston, the question of "indicating" members who are present but refuse to vote. Governor Worthington, backed by the Republicans and gold Democrats, refused to vacate the chair.

Senator Gobel, the president pro tem., was presiding, pending the appeal from Worthington's decision, demanded his right to the chair and both presided for a time over separate bodies.

KENTUCKY FIGHT COMPROMISED.

Senator Goebel and Lieutenant Governor Worthington Compromise.

FRANKFORT, Ky., May 18.—The sealed doors were thrown open at the regular time and President Pro Tem. Goebel took the chair to keep it till five minutes before 3 o'clock, when the Worthington senate was to meet and when it was feared that a possible difficulty over possession of the chair might ensue. A few minutes later Lieutenant Governor Worthington came into the hall and went up to the chair. Senator Goebel talked pleasantly to him and then called up Senator Bronston.

It developed at once that a compromise had been reached that the Lieutenant Governor concluding he might have been wrong in resuming the chair before the appeal from his decision was acted upon and that he had agreed to let things proceed in the regular way. The agreement was that both senates should meet and adjourn till today at 11 o'clock, when Senator Goebel shall be in the chair and the appeal still pending. The journal will then begin where the clerk ceased to act. This means that the silver minority has won; that all the majority is not as warmly for the fusion bill as they seem and it will not be passed.

The state witnessed for a time the spectacle of two separate bodies sitting in session in same hall and each claiming to be the senate of Kentucky. The fight over the Stephenson fusion bill was renewed and the advocates of the bill were confident of its passage. The silver Democrats insisting that Lieutenant Governor Worthington vacate the chair pending an appeal from one of his decisions by Senator Bronston, the question of "indicating" members who are present but refuse to vote.

Governor Worthington, backed by the Republicans and gold Democrats, refused to vacate the chair.

James McGuren suffered an accident at the shops. His finger was mashed.

Sam Berry has gone to Millport to recuperate.

No work is being done at the Vulcan brick works. Repairs are being made to the machinery.

Miss Ella Godard has returned to her home in Salineville after a visit here.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., TUESDAY, MAY 18

JOHN WANAMAKER added nothing to his reputation for honesty of purpose by attacking the administration.

IMPORTERS are shrewder than senators. They recognize the value of time between now and the passage of the tariff bill.

EACH day brings additional evidence that none but simon pure silverites are to be considered by McLean and his crowd.

THE Democrat who does not want the empty honor of being the gubernatorial candidate of his party, is not much of a Democrat this year.

THE Lisbon Journal seems to be gaining ground in its fight for recognition and county printing, that is, so far as the recognition is concerned.

THIS has been a bad year for trusts. A late ruling in Illinois sends up in smoke any chances the tobacco combination might have had for doing business in that state.

CINCINNATI allows public exhibitions of baseball on Sunday; in Cleveland the police arrest the players. That's one difference between a Democratic and a Republican administration.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY is practical. His brief message advising an appropriation to feed the scores of starving Americans in Cuba, is worth a dozen columns of spread eagle oratory.

FAITHFUL Bill Taylor will probably be chosen temporary chairman of the Democratic state convention, and it is said that he is even now preparing a statement of how many votes his ticket will have in each county.

It is predicted that the Democrats will conduct a noisy campaign in Ohio next fall. This probably means that the rumor concerning the number of speeches to be made by Mr. Bryan and Sockless Simpson is true.

THE Yankees of the Orient may find that the original Yankee will stand no nonsense if they continue to encroach upon Hawaii. He is big enough to give his enterprising namesake a thorough spanking if it becomes necessary.

AN English company, whose stockholders have grown rich making varnish in France and selling it in this country, has decided to construct a plant on this side of the ocean if the tariff bill becomes a law. Yet the Democrats pretend they can see no merit in protection.

THE Michigan legislature has passed a bill prohibiting swearing in the rural districts. Why the towns and cities were not included is something not yet made plain, but it was probably done as a compliment to Governor Pingree, who will have something strong to say when he finds the senate is talking of impeaching him.

CONVICT MADE GOODS AND TARIFF.

Perhaps one of the best amendments yet proposed to the tariff bill is one which prohibits the importation of convict made goods. The amendment is not trimmed or garnished. It simply states that wares from the penitentiaries of the old world have no place in the American markets, and shall not be admitted. It is a wise provision, and should be engrafted into the law. Perhaps if all the amendments had been born of such good sense we would not hear so much of a possible veto when the bill goes to the president.

PLAYING FOR MONEY

The Barbers Have Arranged A Game.

MERCER TALKED ON PITCHING

He Has Ideas, and Is Not Afraid to Let the World Know What He Thinks of Striking Out Players—Games Scheduled For Future Days.

The East Liverpool and Burford pottery baseball teams next Friday will try conclusions at West End park. A good game can be expected, as the teams are very evenly matched.

Dick Padden last week lost 87 points in his batting record, and is in fourth place with an average as 277.

The newspaper men always get after Winnie Mercer as soon as the Senators strike a town, and he, in his quiet, gentlemanly way never fails to tell them something of interest. Yesterday the Cleveland Leader asked him a few questions, and among other things he said:

"A pitcher's worth is not gauged by the number of batsmen he can strike out. There's only one ball to be used in striking out batsmen as a rule, and that is speed. My best strike-out record is eighteen in one game, and I used nothing but speed. Jimmy McJames struck out twenty-five in an amateur game down South two years ago. Of course, a pitcher who has nothing but a speedy ball is a dunc in baseball today. He may go in one day and strike out a big bunch, just through bull-headed luck, but the next time he goes against the same aggregation the chances are that his speed will be tamed, and he will be ready to switch to a slow ball, if he has any in his repertoire."

John Godwin left this morning to join the Batavia, N. Y., club. John is a first class ball player, and will undoubtedly make a reputation for himself.

A large crowd of sports assembled last night about 1 o'clock at the Hotel Grand corner under the impression that the Black Frank-Haley fight was going to take place. They were doomed to disappointment, but rumor has it the battle will take place next Monday night.

The colored barbers have decided to accept the challenge of the white barbers to play a game of ball for $20 a side. The clubs will take a few days to get in practice, and the game will be played next week.

CLEANING THE WELL.

It Will Soon Become a Favorite Place For the Thirsty.

A force of men were this morning placed at work cleaning out the Diamond well and putting it in first class condition. When they have finished the committee will have the pump started at once, and keep it going through the warm months. The hour for shutting off the water has not yet been determined. Recorder Crosser is missed from the committee, and as a consequence the grass around the monument has not been cut this year. It will be attended to this week.

Repairing the Hall.

The trustees and official board of the Christian church met in their new home last evening, and decided to make some improvements in the hall. Work will be commenced at once, but how much will be spent could not be learned. However, the place will be given a thorough cleaning.

Worked Hard.

Monday is, as a rule, a slow day at the freight depot, but yesterday 14 cars were loaded and 73 handled in the yards. A lot of sewer pipe was also shipped. The pony worked at this end of the line until after 9 o'clock last night.

Going to Minneapolis.

Friends of Miss Lizzie Maas in this city received word today that the lady would be taken to Minneapolis by her sister, Mrs. Arnold, as soon as her condition would permit her removal. She is in Youngstown.

A Big Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. John Allison, which took place yesterday, was one of the largest ever held in Hancock county, the procession to the cemetery being over a mile in length.

Caught In a Fence.

John Stoffel took one of his hounds to the woods, yesterday. The animal got fastened in a wire fence, and as a result received a deep cut on the breast. It may prove fatal.

Harrison Rinehart went to Pittsburgh today to purchase some stock.

MARSEILLES.

Its Splendid Site Discovered by Greeks Twenty-five Centuries Ago.

Every sort of commerce is represented upon the quays and in the warehouses of Marseilles, writes Sir Edwin Arnold in the London Telegraph, but her principal commodities are cereals, oil seeds, coal, sugar, coffee, hides, wool and silk, which 6,000,000 tons of shipping bring take or away. Often and often, as I have myself visited this stately city, the grandeur and beauty of her situation, the brightness of her sunlit hills, and the grouping of her white rocks mirrored in the blue sea always have for me a fresh charm and always fill me with admiration for those wise Phoenician Greeks who came upon this splendid site in their wandering galleys 25 centuries ago and saw at once, with the eyes of sailors and with the courage of empire founders, what an opportunity nature had here granted to the makers of history for a maritime metropolis. They were soon strong enough, those old Levantines, to defeat even the Carthaginians in Corsican waters and to conclude equal alliances with the rising power of Rome. They planted their thriving colonies all along the sunny Riviera, at Tauris, which is now Ciotat; at Olbia, which is today Hyeres; at Antipolis, which the Frenchman of the present time names Antibes, and at Nice, which was Italian and known as Nizza, until it became French and fashionable as Nice.

Marseilles was so enlightened and cultivated a city in the time of Tacitus that Agricola had been educated there, and it possessed temples as majestic as any in Sicily or Magna Graecia. I forgot all its mediaeval and modern associations when, pacing the streets and quays, I see again those dark eyes, those strongly marked profiles, the black tresses with blue lights upon their coils and braids and the elastic tread and measured steps which still make Marseilles Phoenician as far as concern many among her working population. No intermixture of races has sufficed to efface the old Greek countenance and gait. You will see the same men and women under Mount Carmel in trunks and abas and embroidered shirts as you meet here going up to Notre Dame de la Garde or around the Bassin de la Joliette.

CAUGHT BY A WORD.

The Possibilities of Working a Simple Trick Two Ways.

Three young men were seated at a table in a Market street restaurant. One of them drew from his pocket and laid upon the table a silver dollar. Beside it he placed a visiting card, with a round hole about a half inch in diameter pierced through its center. Said he: "See the fat, white dollar? See the little hole in the card? Bet you the cigars I can push the big dollar through the little hole." "I'll go you," said one of his companions, "but, remember, you are to push that dollar through that hole without enlarging the hole." "That's what," responded the proposer of the feat.

Laying the dollar flat on the table, he held the card on edge just behind it. Then he produced a pencil which he shoved through the hole in the card until it touched the edge of the coin. "Pushing the dollar—through the hole, see?" "Here comes Jonesey," said the loser. "Lend me your dollar and your funny card, and I'll get revenge. Oh, I won't do a thing to Jonesey."

A lengthy, cadaverous young fellow, with a vacuous expression, drifted into the vacant place at the table. "Jonesey," said the loser of the cigars, "here's a big dollar and here's a little round hole in a card. Bet you I can put the dollar through the hole just as it is—loser to pay all four of our checks." "Done," said Jonesey. The other proceeded to repeat the action of the first trickster. "Hold on," drawled Jonesey languidly; "your contract is to 'put' the dollar through the hole. I didn't bet you could 'push' it through the perforation. You see, dear boy, I've been up against the game hitherto."—Philadelphia Record.

The Episcopal Church.

The Church Standard (Episcopal) admits that there is some truth in the charge of sectarian superciliousness often brought against the Episcopal church. "There is," it says, "a good deal of offensive conceit in the way in which we talk about the 'sects' and the 'denominations.' There is something hardly less offensive in the patronizing way in which we sometimes admit the Christian graces which are exhibited in the lives and works of their ministers and members, as if, forsooth, they were a marvel of God's exceptional and wholly uncovenanted grace. If we were as catholic as we pretend to be, or just one-half as catholic as we ought to be, we should behave differently. Different behavior would beget a different disposition toward the church from that which generally prevails among non-Episcopalians."

Witch Superstitions.

In some of the country districts of England the peasants are said to believe that elves and witches steal babies from their cradles and place their own offspring in the place of the robust child. After a child is baptized the witches and fairies have no power over it. Hence the peasants have their little ones baptized as soon as possible.

IMPORTERS are shrewder than senators. They recognize the value of time between now and the passage of the tariff bill.

EACH day brings additional evidence that none but simon pure silverites are to be considered by McLean and his crowd.

THE Democrat who does not want the empty honor of being the gubernatorial candidate of his party, is not much of a Democrat this year.

THE Lisbon Journal seems to be gaining ground in its fight for recognition and county printing, that is, so far as the recognition is concerned.

THIS has been a bad year for trusts. A late ruling in Illinois sends up in smoke any chances the tobacco combination might have had for doing business in that state.

CINCINNATI allows public exhibitions of baseball on Sunday; in Cleveland the police arrest the players. That's one difference between a Democratic and a Republican administration.

PRESIDENT MCKINLEY is practical. His brief message advising an appropriation to feed the scores of starving Americans in Cuba, is worth a dozen columns of spread eagle oratory.

FAITHFUL Bill Taylor will probably be chosen temporary chairman of the Democratic state convention, and it is said that he is even now preparing a statement of how many votes his ticket will have in each county.

It is predicted that the Democrats will conduct a noisy campaign in Ohio next fall. This probably means that the rumor concerning the number of speeches to be made by Mr. Bryan and Sockless Simpson is true.

THE Yankees of the Orient may find that the original Yankee will stand no nonsense if they continue to encroach upon Hawaii. He is big enough to give his enterprising namesake a thorough spanking if it becomes necessary.

AN English company, whose stockholders have grown rich making varnish in France and selling it in this country, has decided to construct a plant on this side of the ocean if the tariff bill becomes a law. Yet the Democrats pretend they can see no merit in protection.

THE Michigan legislature has passed a bill prohibiting swearing in the rural districts. Why the towns and cities were not included is something not yet made plain, but it was probably done as a compliment to Governor Pingree, who will have something strong to say when he finds the senate is talking of impeaching him.

CONVICT MADE GOODS AND TARIFF.

Perhaps one of the best amendments yet proposed to the tariff bill is one which prohibits the importation of convict made goods. The amendment is not trimmed or garnished. It simply states that wares from the penitentiaries of the old world have no place in the American markets, and shall not be admitted. It is a wise provision, and should be engrafted into the law. Perhaps if all the amendments had been born of such good sense we would not hear so much of a possible veto when the bill goes to the president.

PLAYING FOR MONEY

The Barbers Have Arranged A Game.

MERCER TALKED ON PITCHING

He Has Ideas, and Is Not Afraid to Let the World Know What He Thinks of Striking Out Players—Games Scheduled For Future Days.

The East Liverpool and Burford pottery baseball teams next Friday will try conclusions at West End park. A good game can be expected, as the teams are very evenly matched.

Dick Padden last week lost 87 points in his batting record, and is in fourth place with an average of 277.

The newspaper men always get after Winnie Mercer as soon as the Senators strike a town, and he, in his quiet, gentlemanly way never fails to tell them something of interest. Yesterday the Cleveland Leader asked him a few questions, and among other things he said:

"A pitcher's worth is not gauged by the number of batsmen he can strike out. There's only one ball to be used in striking out batsmen as a rule, and that is speed. My best strike-out record is eighteen in one game, and I used nothing but speed. Jimmy McJames struck out twenty-five in an amateur game down South two years ago. Of course, a pitcher who has nothing but a speedy ball is a dunc in baseball today. He may go in one day and strike out a big bunch, just through bull-headed luck, but the next time he goes against the same aggregation the chances are that his speed will be tamed, and he will be ready to switch to a slow ball, if he has any in his repertoire."

John Godwin left this morning to join the Batavia, N. Y., club. John is a first class ball player, and will undoubtedly make a reputation for himself.

A large crowd of sports assembled last night about 1 o'clock at the Hotel Grand corner under the impression that the Black Frank-Haley fight was going to take place. They were doomed to disappointment, but rumor has it the battle will take place next Monday night.

The colored barbers have decided to accept the challenge of the white barbers to play a game of ball for $20 a side. The clubs will take a few days to get in practice, and the game will be played next week.

CLEANING THE WELL.

It Will Soon Become a Favorite Place For the Thirsty.

A force of men were this morning placed at work cleaning out the Diamond well and putting it in first class condition. When they have finished the committee will have the pump started at once, and keep it going through the warm months. The hour for shutting off the water has not yet been determined. Recorder Crosser is missed from the committee, and as a consequence the grass around the monument has not been cut this year. It will be attended to this week.

MARSEILLES.

Its Splendid Site Discovered by Greeks Twenty-five Centuries Ago.

Every sort of commerce is represented upon the quays and in the warehouses of Marseilles, writes Sir Edwin Arnold in the London Telegraph, but her principal commodities are cereals, oil seeds, coal, sugar, coffee, hides, wool and silk, which 6,000,000 tons of shipping bring take or away. Often and often, as I have myself visited this stately city, the grandeur and beauty of her situation, the brightness of her sunlit hills, and the grouping of her white rocks mirrored in the blue sea always have for me a fresh charm and always fill me with admiration for those wise Phœcean Greeks who came upon this splendid site in their wandering galleys 25 centuries ago and saw at once, with the eyes of sailors and with the courage of empire founders, what an opportunity nature had here granted to the makers of history for a maritime metropolis. They were soon strong enough, those old Levantines, to defeat even the Carthaginians in Corsican waters and to conclude equal alliances with the rising power of Rome. They planted their thriving colonies all along the sunny Riviera, at Taurae, which is now Ciotat; at Olbia, which is today Hyeres; at Antipolis, which the Frenchman of the present time names Antibes, and at Nicea, which was Italian and known as Nizza, until it became French and fashionable as Nice.

Marseilles was so enlightened and cultivated a city in the time of Tacitus that Agricola had been educated there, and it possessed temples as majestic as any in Sicily or Magna Græcia. I forget all its mediæval and modern associations when, pacing the streets and quays, I see again those dark eyes, those strongly marked profiles, the black tresses with blue lights upon their coils and braids and the elastic tread and measured steps which still make Marseilles Phœcean as far as concern many among her working population. No intermixture of races has sufficed to efface the old Greek countenance and gait. You will see the same men and women under Mount Carmel in tricorn and abas and embroidered shirts as you meet here going up to Notre Dame de la Garde or around the Bassin de la Joliette.

CAUGHT BY A WORD.

The Possibilities of Working a Simple Trick Two Ways.

Three young men were seated at a table in a Market street restaurant. One of them drew from his pocket and laid upon the table a silver dollar. Beside it he placed a visiting card, with a round hole about a half inch in diameter pierced through its center. Said he: "See the fat, white dollar? See the little hole in the card? Bet you the cigars I can push the big dollar through the little hole." "I'll go you," said one of his companions, "but, remember, you are to push that dollar through that hole without enlarging the hole." "That's what," responded the proposer of the feat.

Laying the dollar flat on the table, he held the card on edge just behind it. Then he produced a pencil which he shoved through the hole in the card until it touched the edge of the coin. "Pushing the dollar—through the hole, see?" "Here comes Jonesey," said the loser. "Lend me your dollar and your funny card, and I'll get revenge. Oh, I won't do a thing to Jonesey."

A lengthy, cadaverous young fellow, with a vacuous expression, drifted into the vacant place at the table. "Jonesey," said the loser of the cigars, "here's a big dollar and here's a little round hole in a card. Bet you I can put the dollar through the hole just as it is—loser to pay all four of our checks."

"Done," said Jonesey. The other proceeded to repeat the action of the first trickster. "Hold on," drawled Jonesey languidly; "your contract is to 'put' the dollar through the hole. I didn't bet you could 'push' it through the perforation. You see, dear boy, I've been up against the game hitherto."

"That's what," responded the proposer of the feat.

The Episcopal Church.

The Church Standard (Episcopal) admits that there is some truth in the charge of sectarian superciliousness often brought against the Episcopal church. "There is," it says, "a good deal of offensive conceit in the way in which we talk about the 'sects' and the 'denominations.' There is something hardly less offensive in the patronizing way in which we sometimes admit the Christian graces which are exhibited in the lives and works of their ministers and members, as if, forsooth, they were a marvel of God's exceptional and wholly uncovenanted grace. If we were as catholic as we pretend to be, or just one-half as catholic as we ought to be, we should behave differently. Different behavior would beget a different disposition toward the church from that which generally prevails among non-Episcopalians."

Witch Superstitions.

In some of the country districts of England the peasants are said to believe that elves and witches steal babies from their cradles and place their own elfin offspring in the place of the robust child. After a child is baptized the witches and fairies have no power over it. Hence the peasants have their little ones baptized as soon as possible.

PASSED QUIETLY AWAY

Doctor J. J. Ikirt Died Early This Morning.

HE PRACTICED MANY YEARS

And Was a Resident of This Place a Long Time—Born in Lisbon He Studied Medicine In Newark and Columbus, But Lived In This County Almost All His Life.

Dr. J. J. Ikirt died this morning at 1:30 o'clock, at his home in Sixth street, from an attack of pneumonia and heart trouble.

He has been subject to attacks of heart trouble since 1890, at which time he had the grip. Three weeks ago today he attended the funeral of Mrs. Treffinger, a near relative, at Madison church. The strain was too much for him, and the next day he was confined to his bed with a severe attack of heart trouble. He rallied in two days, but was left in a prostrate condition, dropping into a low grade of typhoid. He improved until last Saturday when pneumonia set in, causing his death. He was conscious to within five minutes before death came and was able to speak and bid all the last farewell.

Jacob J. Ikirt was for over 20 years a resident of this city, and was one of the pioneer physicians of the valley. He was born in Lisbon in 1826, and was the son of George and Elizabeth Ikirt. His parents were natives of Pennsylvania, and moved to this county from that state. Dr. Ikirt received his educational training in the schools of this county. He began to read medicine in 1845 with Dr. John McCook, of Lisbon. In 1846 he began the study of medicine with Doctor Stanberry, of Newark, with whom he remained three years. He continued his professional education in the Sterling Medical college, of Columbus, and in 1848 began the practice of medicine in this county, where he has been ever since, with the exception of four years spent in Hancock county. In 1852 he was married to Elizabeth Fife, who died in February 1894. Four children were born to bless the union, three of whom are living to mourn the loss of their father, Hon. George P. Ikirt, Mrs. A. H. Clark and Mrs. Mary Crow. The other, an infant, was burned to death when 18 months of age.

Doctor Ikirt occupied a prominent place among the medical men of this part of the state, and was one of the oldest and best known practitioners in the county. He was a staunch Democrat but at all times was courteous and kind and numbered his friends by the hosts, all of whom will be pained to hear of his untimely death. He was a member of the Masonic lodge of Lisbon for many years and the First Presbyterian church of this city.

He was of an energetic, jovial nature and overcame the greatest obstacles with characteristic energy. In his home he was an extraordinary man, and was devoted to his family, being an affectionate husband and a kind father. He was known to travel 10 miles late at night to reach home rather than be away from his family. He was probably one of the best known men in this county. While apparently strong he has not been very vigorous for a few years, and has spent his time waiting for the end, ready and willing to pass to the great beyond, knowing well that he had lived his allotted time.

The funeral will take place Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence. Interment will be made at Riverview.

FLYING SPARKS

Fired George C. Murphy's Stable and Caused Damage.

Two small boys playing in Church alley, this morning, discovered fire at a stable, owned by George C. Murphy. A telephone message from George Meredith's was sent to the fire station. The department was soon on the scene, and by quick work the flames were extinguished.

The fire started in the loft and was caused from some sparks of burning straw in an adjoining yard, which set fire to the hay. The stable was occupied by Frank Williams who by quick action saved all he had in the building. West of the stable was a small frame dwelling of two rooms. It is occupied by a Mr. Malkin and family. It was only damaged by water.

The loss to the Murphy property is estimated at $150, covered by insurance.

SNAP JUDGMENT.

Solicitor Grosshans Claims It In the Sant Case.

LISBON, May 18—[Special]—Attorney Frank E. Grosshans is in court today, and this afternoon argued a motion, filed by him at noon, asking that what the defense terms snap judgment in the case of Sant against East Liverpool, in which judgment was rendered yesterday, may be vacated so far as it applies to Berg, Marshall, Owen, Horwell, Kent and Swindells, and he be allowed to file an answer as their attorney. The defense claim that they have a good and valid defense to the action, and with the motion filed today is an affidavit made by Court Bailiff Connell to the effect that only last week he notified Solicitor Grosshans by telephone that he would have until Tuesday, May 18, to answer. Attorney Grosshans also made affidavit that he informed W. H. Spence, Sant's attorney, that he represented all of the councilmen against whom the action was brought, and when the case was assigned for trial the issues would be made up as to all parties. Judge Smith will announce his decision in a few days.

They Waited Well.

A large audience once gathered in Baltimore to hear the late Professor Sylvester read a unique original poem of 400 lines, all rhyming with the name Rosalind. He had appended to the poem a large number of explanatory footnotes, which he said he would read first. When at last he had done so, he looked up at the clock and was horrified to find that he had kept the audience an hour and a half before beginning to read the poem they had come to hear. The astonishment on his face was answered by a burst of good humored laughter from the audience, and then, after begging all his hearers to feel at perfect liberty to leave if they had engagements, he read the Rosalind poem.

GATHERED THEM ALL IN

Mayor Gilbert Had a Long List of Prisoners.

SOME OF THEM PAID PROMPTLY

While Others Were Returned to Jail Awaiting the Action of Friends—A Row at the Ball Ground Has Not Been Explained—The Guilty Ones.

There were all kinds of fun in police court, this morning, and offenders of all shapes and sizes were before the mayor to answer some charge or other.

As the hat was passed around, the first to put in a few shekels was John Lock. This gentleman and Tom Finegan were having some sport near the Dresden pottery when Officer Jennings turned his eagle eye in that direction. After meditating a short time the Black Maria was called to take them to the boarding school, and the hat now contains $13.20 as a contribution from these two.

"Well, Mr. Deitz, what can we do for you," said the mayor.

"Well, I was drunk, I admit, but I haven't got a cent now. With your consent I will linger a little while in the coop and will try to give you a little money later," and the hat went on.

John Cannon was next called upon. As someone cracked a joke Mr. Cannon was taken back to the rear again. Officer Jennings found him in the Diamond, yesterday afternoon, eating eggs.

Jack Delaney was liberated a few days ago, but as old friends are not soon forgotten, he made a call at the front office, yesterday, in company with Officer Jennings. He was, as the charge reads, "raising Cain" in his wife's boarding house, and she would be down to make a charge this morning.

The patrol went to West End park, yesterday afternoon, to give Tim Strain and James Elwell a ride. Elwell had a bad cut on the forehead, and there is a difference of opinion as to the cause. Both were drunk, and when being put in the coop both shook hands with all other inmates. Tim says his friend fell on the railroad, and cut his head. Others who were at the Park say the men were fighting and Tim put the man out by kicking him in the face with his wooden peg when he was down. Elwell presented a bloody appearance before he washed his face, and when asked as to the cause had nothing to say. They were given a hearing this afternoon Elwell got $7.75.

Everybody wanted to go to the fire, so this ended the sport.

The Crawling Centiped.

The crawling centiped is built somewhat on the model of a train of cars, the resemblance being enhanced by the reptile's habit of running straight backward when suddenly confronted. Every joint of its long body has two legs, each jointed and tipped with a sharp point like a bee's sting. Its head is furnished with two pincherlike poison fangs, which work horizontally toward each other, and instead of legs its rearmost joint is furnished with two long hooked claws, which drag behind as the centiped walks, and by which it can hang head downward from any place to which it can fit them. If a chance is given the centiped, it will run from the presence of man, and most of the cases where men have been bitten by one of these reptiles have come about through the man rolling upon them or in some other way crowding them while asleep.

The sensation produced by a centipede's crawling upon the bare skin, with its numerous and keenly pointed feet, is usually described as similar to that of being touched with a redhot poker. If the person thus invaded remains perfectly still, the reptile will crawl off as soon as it can. If an attempt be made to shake it off, it sets every claw into the flesh in the effort to hold on, with an effect like the simultaneous stinging by a score of bees, and if any way it be crowded or jammed it bites, injecting a poison which, though less virulent than that of the tarantula or rattlesnake, causes a serious sloughing from the wound during the progress of recovery.—New York Sun.

Catch Fish With Wheels.

A curious plan for catching fish is used on the Columbia river. A number of wheels are set up in the middle of the stream, which, as they turn round, catch up the fish and cast them into troughs by the river banks. The salmon are then tinned and sent all over the world. As much as five tons' weight of fish a day has thus been taken.—Kansas City Star.

Between Carthage and Stirlingville, in Jefferson county, N. Y., there is a stretch of country where the sand drifts like snow, making great banks and blinding the eyes of those who look up wind. It is a desolate, barren region, where the soil is only as deep as the roots of the grass.

FLYING SPARKS

Fired George C. Murphy's Stable and Caused Damage.

Two small boys playing in Church alley, this morning, discovered fire at a stable, owned by George C. Murphy. A telephone message from George Meredith's was sent to the fire station. The department was soon on the scene, and by quick work the flames were extinguished.

The fire started in the loft and was caused from some sparks of burning straw in an adjoining yard, which set fire to the hay. The stable was occupied by Frank Williams who by quick action saved all he had in the building. West of the stable was a small frame dwelling of two rooms. It is occupied by a Mr. Malkin and family. It was only damaged by water.

The loss to the Murphy property is estimated at $150, covered by insurance.

SNAP JUDGMENT.

Solicitor Grosshans Claims It In the Sant Case.

LISBON, May 18—[Special]—Attorney Frank E. Grosshans is in court today, and this afternoon argued a motion, filed by him at noon, asking that what the defense terms snap judgment in the case of Sant against East Liverpool, in which judgment was rendered yesterday, may be vacated so far as it applies to Berg, Marshall, Owen, Horwell, Kent and Swindells, and he be allowed to file an answer as their attorney. The defense claim that they have a good and valid defense to the action, and with the motion filed today is an affidavit made by Court Bailiff Connell to the effect that only last week he notified Solicitor Grosshans by telephone that he would have until Tuesday, May 18, to answer. Attorney Grosshans also made affidavit that he informed W. H. Spence, Sant's attorney, that he represented all of the councilmen against whom the action was brought, and when the case was assigned for trial the issues would be made up as to all parties. Judge Smith will announce his decision in a few days.

They Waited Well.

A large audience once gathered in Baltimore to hear the late Professor Sylvester read a unique original poem of 400 lines, all rhyming with the name Rosalind. He had appended to the poem a large number of explanatory footnotes, which he said he would read first. When at last he had done so, he looked up at the clock and was horrified to find that he had kept the audience an hour and a half before beginning to read the poem they had come to hear. The astonishment on his face was answered by a burst of good humored laughter from the audience, and then, after begging all his hearers to feel at perfect liberty to leave if they had engagements, he read the Rosalind poem.

GATHERED THEM ALL IN

Mayor Gilbert Had a Long List of Prisoners.

SOME OF THEM PAID PROMPTLY

While Others Were Returned to Jail Awaiting the Action of Friends—A Row at the Ball Ground Has Not Been Explained—The Guilty Ones.

There were all kinds of fun in police court, this morning, and offenders of all shapes and sizes were before the mayor to answer some charge or other.

As the hat was passed around, the first to put in a few shekels was John Lock. This gentleman and Tom Finegan were having some sport near the Dresden pottery when Officer Jennings turned his eagle eye in that direction. After meditating a short time the Black Maria was called to take them to the boarding school, and the hat now contains $13.20 as a contribution from these two.

"Well, Mr. Deitz, what can we do for you," said the mayor.

"Well, I was drunk, I admit, but I haven't got a cent now. With your consent I will linger a little while in the coop and will try to give you a little money later," and the hat went on.

John Cannon was next called upon. As someone cracked a joke Mr. Cannon was taken back to the rear again. Officer Jennings found him in the Diamond, yesterday afternoon, eating eggs.

Jack Delaney was liberated a few days ago, but as old friends are not soon forgotten, he made a call at the front office, yesterday, in company with Officer Jennings. He was, as the charge reads, "raising Cain" in his wife's boarding house, and she would be down to make a charge this morning.

The patrol went to West End park, yesterday afternoon, to give Tim Strain and James Elwell a ride. Elwell had a bad cut on the forehead, and there is a difference of opinion as to the cause. Both were drunk, and when being put in the coop both shook hands with all other inmates. Tim says his friend fell on the railroad, and cut his head. Others who were at the Park say the men were fighting and Tim put the man out by kicking him in the face with his wooden peg when he was down. Elwell presented a bloody appearance before he washed his face, and when asked as to the cause had nothing to say. They were given a hearing this afternoon Elwell got $7.75.

Everybody wanted to go to the fire, so this ended the sport.

The Crawling Centiped.

The crawling centiped is built somewhat on the model of a train of cars, the resemblance being enhanced by the reptile's habit of running straight backward when suddenly confronted. Every joint of its long body has two legs, each jointed and tipped with a sharp point like a bee's sting. Its head is furnished with two pincherlike poison fangs, which work horizontally toward each other, and instead of legs its rearmost joint is furnished with two long hooked claws, which drag behind as the centiped walks, and by which it can hang head downward from any place to which it can fix them. If a chance is given the centiped, it will run from the presence of man, and most of the cases where men have been bitten by one of these reptiles have come about through the man rolling upon them or in some other way crowding them while asleep.

The sensation produced by a centipede's crawling upon the bare skin, with its numerous and keenly pointed feet, is usually described as similar to that of being touched with a redhot poker. If the person thus invaded remains perfectly still, the reptile will crawl off as soon as it can. If an attempt is made to shake it off, it sets every claw into the flesh in the effort to hold on, with an effect like the simultaneous stinging by a score of bees, and if any way it be crowded or jammed it bites, injecting a poison which, though less virulent than that of the tarantula or rattlesnake, causes a serious sloughing from the wound during the progress of recovery.—New York Sun.

Catch Fish With Wheels.

A curious plan for catching fish is used on the Columbia river. A number of wheels are set up in the middle of the stream, which, as they turn round, catch up the fish and cast them into troughs by the river banks. The salmon are then tinned and sent all over the world. As much as five tons' weight of fish a day has thus been taken.—Kansas City Star.

Between Carthage and St. Louis, in Jefferson county, N. Y., there is a stretch of country where the sand drifts like snow, making great banks and blinding the eyes of those who look up wind. It is a desolate, barren region, where the soil is only as deep as the roots of the grass.

CASE WAS DELAYED FOR WEEKS

But Attorney Spence Wearied of Inaction, and the Court Made a Move—The Defendants Were Astonished When They Heard the News.

There were a number of astonished councilmen and ex-councilmen in the city when they heard that John Sant had won his suit against them and the city for $481.

The defendants were Charles Berg, Dr. Marshall, E. J. Owen, John Horwell, William Kent and William Swindells. Sant sued on that famous contract, and the matter was placed in the hands of Solicitor Grosshans.

The case was set for hearing, but was continued. W. H. Spence, as Sant's attorney, stated today that an answer to the petition had never been filed. The date for hearing was in the assignment of the week before last, but it was continued on account of the illness of Solicitor Grosshans. Judgment could have been taken last term, he said. The solicitor filed a demur, and it came up for hearing a few days before the trial. He objected to some things in the petition, and in order to avoid the delay Spence agreed to the changes. He wanted the case to go to trial as soon as possible. "The councilmen as individuals were not represented at all," he said, "and the records here show that they never paid any attention to the suit. The judgement was given in the regular manner by default. Yes, the councilmen can move for a new trial."

The interested parties in this city were surprised when they learned of what had been done. "Our case was in the hands of the solicitor," said Doctor Marshall. I did not know that judgment had been taken, I thought he was looking after the case."

MARSHALL P. WILDER.

A Sketch of the Little Humorist as Written by Himself.

I was born nine years after Bill Nye, in the state of New York. At one year I made a kick, and my father moved me from out of the state into the city of New York. My father, being a physician, later took me to Hartford for my health, where I began to laugh and grow fat. I have been laughing ever since.

My first partner in the funny business was the red headed son of the jailer in Hartford. He played Buffalo Bill—the only one who ever played the part with red hair, but that was his conception of it. We made money. Our stage was the scaffold, which was kept in the garret, except when there was a hanging, when we took off the play.

On returning to New York city, I found myself without the red headed friend and without means. For a time I buried my talent in Bradstreet's agency as file boy at $2 per week. I mixed in so many jokes with my work that the letters didn't read seriously enough. Then I went to England and waited for things to come my way.

They came in a walk, while the $20 I had left kept going in a trot. I found that living in a small hall bedroom made me narrow minded, so I staid out in the park several nights to give myself room, as well as to air my repertory. I concluded it was weak in me to bury my gifts simply because I was in hard luck, so I began a series of free entertainments and became so popular that I began taking three cups of coffee a day, instead of one, as heretofore.

Among those who took advantage of the cheap prices was the Prince of Wales. It cost him nothing to laugh, so he laughed. Several people wanted to know what he was laughing at. He replied, "That." I had told a joke about the mother-in-law which struck the lost chord in the prince's heart and woke up a responsive, sympathetic pang. I have been charging all I could get for my services ever since. Being a Republican, I struck myself off the free list, as I no longer consider myself raw material.

For several years now I have been in this city, am known by nearly all the street car drivers, who never fail to hunt me up before I get off.

My family consists of my father, whose constant, patient companion I am. In retaliation for my "gags" he practices daily his school of homeopathy on me. It is hard to tell which gets the worst of it. We have as many rooms as we wish, but only one home. His head is silver—heart gold. We are pals.

In this autobiography I have, in my shrinking way, left out most of my strong points, as is becoming at such times. Yet, if I have unjustly slandered myself, there be others who have the right to set me square before an outraged public. Far be it from me to do myself justice. The end. Merrily yours. —Marshall P. Wilder in Empire Magazine.

GLUTTONY'S PENALTY.

Lives That Are Shortened by the Pleasures of the Table.

In spite of the warnings and commands of family physicians, in spite of the many examples of shortened lives and lives of suffering, men will yield to the seductiveness of the pleasures of the table. The spectacle of the man who overeats or who deliberately eats improper food is common enough, but rarely do we see as plain evidence of the admiration for the glutton which certain people possess as that which the daily papers some time ago afforded. A well known boniface died at an age when he ought to have been enjoying robust and vigorous health. Some slight mention was made of his business ventures, of his daily life, of his reason for living. But all this part of his existence was immaterial and uninteresting. The great and praiseworthy features of his life seem to have been gastronomic feats and a general ability to eat and drink enormously. He was lauded as the prince of bon vivants, the man who could eat a huge dinner and shortly thereafter swallow a brace of broiled lobsters and a couple of Welsh rabbits, washed down with copious libations of vintages or distillages or fermentations.

During his last illness, when his physicians enjoined rest in bed and a scrupulously careful diet, we read that he was game enough to dress and go out on the hotel porch to sit, winding up his imprudence (and incidentally his life) with a hearty meal, in defiance of the medical directions. This last piece of bravado was apparently considered by certain newspaper reporters as an achievement fit to rank with a victory on a battlefield, and the glutton was admiringly mentioned as though he were a brilliant and fearless hero, risking his life in a worthy cause.

The newspapers were not creating a sentiment, but merely catering to one already formed in thus aiding gluttony. The only conclusion we can draw is that the epicurean philosophy still has its cult, and that many a man's motto is, "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die." The case is left to the moralist.—American Medical-Surgical Bulletin.

The largest proportion of single persons is found in Ireland and Scotland and the smallest in the United States. In Ireland, 67 per cent; in Scotland, 65 per cent, but in the United States only 59 per cent are in that condition.

"THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER."

O starry flag, thy symbols mean A higher and a holier thought By sordid demagogues unseen, Who know not virtue is unbought, But, like morn's splendors, come unsought And that the glory of thy stars Shines on, though diminished when day unbars His gates, are still with glory fraught. So shall thy stars forever be The emblem of eternity, And stars and stripes together wave A beacon till the last crushed slave On earth's remotest shore or sea Hails the proud banner of the free. —David H. Johnson in New York Times.

AN ABLE POLICE HORSE.

He Can Count Up to Six and Perform Other Feats.

The cleverest horse on the New York police force is Pompey, whose registered number on the books of the department is 128. Let any horse or policeman who disputes this statement step forward and prove to the contrary.

Pompey gave an exhibition of his talents for the benefit of The Sunday Journal. He can count and understands ordinary conversation. He is, in fact, almost as intelligent as a policeman.

He is the sted and inseparable companion of Roundsman Redmund P. Keresey of the Thirty-eighth precinct, which is in the annexed district. Pompey is remarkable not alone for his talents; he has also a history, which is full of human interest.

His intelligence developed so rapidly that Keresey began to teach him a few tricks. He would tickle him under the right fore leg with a straw and say, "Pompey, give me your right hand." At first the horse would raise his leg to avoid the tickling, but soon he learned to do the same thing merely when he heard the words "right hand."

The same process taught him to offer his left foot when politely asked to do so. His education went on steadily, and he learned to raise his right or his left hind leg at a mere word from his master. Keresey made the horse understand that when he used the word "papa" in conversation he referred to himself—Keresey. Thus the policeman would say, "Give papa your right hand," and the animal would understand perfectly. The horse's name also was varied occasionally to "Papa's Boy."

An interesting feature of Pompey's education was the rapidity with which he acquired knowledge. In two weeks he raised his right foot when told to. His teacher had fewer difficulties than most men who train animals. Dogs are usually found to be inattentive and unduly exuberant. The superiority of the horse lies not in greater intelligence, but in greater docility.

The next stage was to make Pompey say "Yes" or "No." A tickling on the side of the neck caused him to move his head sidewise. This was accompanied by the command, "Say no." Finally the tickling could be omitted. A titillation of his chin taught him to move his head up and down, which meant yes.

After this Pompey began to learn to count. A light whip was placed on one of his forelegs near the ground. He raised the leg to avoid the obstacle and tapped the ground lightly. Keresey at the same time said, "Count one."

Then he counted one without the use of the whip. This process was continued until Pompey was able to count six, which is his present state of proficiency.

"Say, it's 6 o'clock, time for relief," says Keresey, and Pompey gravely scrapes his fore foot six times on the ground.

He takes two steps to the right or left when told to do so, and in fact has so many accomplishments that they cannot all be enumerated here.—New York Journal.

Both Ways.

"You are a producer of petroleum, I believe?"

"I am."

"I would like to ask you a question or two."

"Go on."

"I have noticed that when oil sells high there is a great deal of activity in well drilling. Why is that?"

"That question is easily answered. We want to take all the advantage we can of high prices. That is natural enough, isn't it?"

"No doubt it is, but when the price of oil is low again prospectors are busy putting down wells. How do you explain that?"

"The explanation of that question is quite as simple as the other. When petroleum sells at a low price, we have to produce more to obtain the same return in dollars."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

Point Not Well Taken.

She—John, you are a perfect bear about the house.

He—Maria, that assertion won't stand the test of science a single moment. A bear sleeps all winter. He doesn't have to get out of bed before daylight every morning to stir up the fire and call the hired girl. Try some other metaphor, Maria.—Chicago Tribune.

Settled.

In a recent address Mrs. Hannah Solomon said:

"The woman question is settled as far as this country is concerned. It is all over. There are a great many men who do not think it is over, but there are also a great many men who do not think the civil war is over. They have a right to both views. There is no law against ignorance of any kind."—Exchange.

The superiority of the horse lies not in greater intelligence, but in greater docility.

The next stage was to make Pompey say "Yes" or "No." A tickling on the side of the neck caused him to move his head sideways. This was accompanied by the command, "Say no." Finally the tickling could be omitted. A titillation of his chin taught him to move his head up and down, which meant yes.

After this Pompey began to learn to count. A light whip was placed on one of his forelegs near the ground. He raised the leg to avoid the obstacle and tapped the ground lightly. Keresey at the same time said, "Count one."

Then he counted one without the use of the whip. This process was continued until Pompey was able to count six, which is his present state of proficiency.

"Say, it's 6 o'clock, time for relief," says Keresey, and Pompey gravely scrapes his fore foot six times on the ground.

He takes two steps to the right or left when told to do so, and in fact has so many accomplishments that they cannot all be enumerated here.—New York Journal.

Both Ways.

"You are a producer of petroleum, I believe?"

"I am."

"I would like to ask you a question or two."

"Go on."

"I have noticed that when oil sells high there is a great deal of activity in well drilling. Why is that?"

"That question is easily answered. We want to take all the advantage we can of high prices. That is natural enough, isn't it?"

"No doubt it is, but when the price of oil is low again prospectors are busy putting down wells. How do you explain that?"

"The explanation of that question is quite as simple as the other. When petroleum sells at a low price, we have to produce more to obtain the same return in dollars."—Pittsburg Chronicle.

She—John, you are a perfect bear about the house.

He—Maria, that assertion won't stand the test of science a single moment. A bear sleeps all winter. He doesn't have to get out of bed before daylight every morning to stir up the fire and call the hired girl. Try some other metaphor, Maria.—Chicago Tribune.

Settled.

In a recent address Mrs. Hannah Solomon said:

"The woman question is settled as far as this country is concerned. It is all over. There are a great many men who do not think it is over, but there are also a great many men who do not think the civil war is over. They have a right to both views. The largest proportion of single persons is found in Ireland and Scotland and the smallest in the United States. In Ireland, 67 per cent; in Scotland, 65 per cent, but in the United States only 59 per cent are in that condition.

The newspapers were not creating a sentiment, but merely catering to one already formed in thus aiding gluttony. The only conclusion we can draw is that the epicurean philosophy still has its cult, and that many a man's motto is, "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die." The case is left to the moralist.—American Medical-Surgical Bulletin.

TRUSTEES ARE TO ACT

No More Bodies Will Go Over the Hill.

AN OFFICER WILL BE EMPLOYED

If It Is Necessary, to Keep Boys From Making the Place a Playground—Council Is Interested but Will Not Be Called Upon.

The days when the old cemetery can be used as a playground have gone by, and there will be no more desecration.

The trustees have decided that no more bodies shall go over the hill, and if necessary all graves along the edge of the bluff will be opened and the coffins removed to a place where there will be no danger of them mingling with sand and eventually becoming a part of some building. This can be done by moving them back several feet, and as there is sufficient ground for that purpose the trustees propose to act before the next slide. They have also determined that the place shall not be made the favorite resort of boys. If necessary an officer will be employed to keep them out and see that the graveyard is kept free from the crowds of youngsters who gather there during the summer. Members of council have become deeply interested in the matter, and had the trustees not decided upon the new plan it is probable council would have ordered something done on that line.

THE BAND PLAYED

And the Young Woman Was Much Surprised.

A short time ago a young lady who lives in the North Side visited in Carrollton. The rumor had gone forth that she was newly married, and on every hand she met with congratulations. When she left that village the band serenaded her, and the young lady was at a loss to know what it meant until she returned home when her friends informed her of the joke that had been played at her expense.

GOING TO THE WOODS.

The Albatross Club Arranged For Their Camp.

The Albatross Camping club, composed principally of members of the Sons of Veterans, held a meeting last evening and elected the following officers: President, James A. Calhoun; secretary, John J. Rose; treasurer, W. R. Dawson. The club will go into camp at their grounds in Shelton's grove the early part of July, and will spend three weeks in the woods.

HURT HIS HEAD.

A Lad Fell From the Siding at Thompson's Pottery.

A young lad named Mullen, employed at the Thompson pottery, was hurt about the head this morning, by falling through the coal siding at that place. He was taken in the pottery and laid on a bench, and for a while it was thought his neck was broken. The patrol was called, but before it arrived the lad got up and went to his home. He lives in the East End.

Up to Date.

Hi Henry's Minstrels promise an up-to-date, refined and novel program at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, May 20. Newness and novelty are certainly commendable features in minstrelsy, and, if Mr. Hi. Henry's attractions be as meritorious as the best leading journals concede to them, they should meet with generous encouragement.*

But Don't Hold Your Breath.

The East Liverpool NEWS REVIEW very truthfully remarks that it would be money in the pocket of every Columbian county farmer if some good system of roads was devised and carried out. But just wait till we get electric lines all over the county. The farmers will then be able to get to town without trouble.—Salem News.

Presented With a Piano.

The Cincinnati chamber of commerce will present the Queen city with a handsome piano and a complete set of colors in honor of the boat being named after that thriving town. The presentation will be made the day the boat is launched. She is expected to glide through the ways in about two weeks.

Waiting For Iron.

Workmen are this morning putting the finishing touches on the trolley wire of the new street car line. The wire is now stretched from Rock Spring to Union and Second streets. As the curve to be placed on Union street has not arrived the work is still being delayed.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

A CHICAGO WOMAN'S SUCCESS AT A NOVEL CALLING.

The Trimmed Sailor Hat—Miss Hillman's Vow—Did It Quietly and Well—Furnishing Country Homes—Everyday Summer Gowns—Tips For the Coming Summer.

"Well, I have made a good living at it for more than six years," said Mrs. Sarah D. Kelly, when asked if a woman could make a living as a scientific packer. "I have managed to support and send to school three children, besides laying up a few hundred dollars in the bank against a rainy day."

"My story is about the same as that of many another woman left a widow with children and no money. I looked about for work and approached a man, whom I had known, in hopes of getting a job in his office. There was no opening, and he told me so, but he said his wife had been taken suddenly ill and they were compelled to move the next week. If I wouldn't be insulted by the proposition, he would be glad to have me go to his house, take charge of things and see to the packing and moving. I was not insulted, and when I finished the job I felt pretty certain that I had found my opening. I had a lot of cards printed and distributed them among several firms who made a specialty of moving. Then I went to some real estate offices and furniture stores, explained my object and asked them to speak a good word for me when an opportunity offered. But I didn't sit down and wait for my customers even then, I looked out for myself and when I heard of a family's expecting to move I called and offered my services. Of course I met with rebuffs at first, for people had never heard of such a thing and many of them told me so. But, fortunately for me, there are many delicate and busy women, who find it impossible to superintend the packing and moving of their furniture and valuables. These women recognized the convenience of my proposition and gave me the job."

"Of course in moving, as in everything else, there should be system. And I can say this for myself—that today I am 100 per cent a better packer than when I began, simply because I have studied and systematized. There is one rule which all packers would do well to follow. All articles not absolutely needed in everyday life should be packed first."

"You ask me to tell you how I go about packing for the average well-to-do family. Pretty much as I do for their wealthier neighbors. Of course they are supposed to furnish all boxes and barrels necessary, but when I go through the house and see that there are not enough I order them. The next thing is my index book. I number on each end and all four sides every box and barrel. In my index book, under their respective numbers, I give a complete list of the contents. Suppose you let me read the contents of a box or barrel from this book made out for a family for whom I have just finished packing and storing furniture. They have gone abroad for a three or four years' stay." Then turning to the front of the book, which resembled a small ledger about as much as anything else, "You see, box No. 5 is on page 13," finding the place, "and contains four etchings, one pair of rowlocks, a pair of skates, three children's games, a box with wedgewood candlesticks, six copies of Harper's Magazine, 1896; two bundles of letters (H. P.), the Pathfinder, Oliver Optic series, and so on," reading what appeared to be an interminable jumble of articles.

"Now this seems a motley collection, but they fitted in, and in that way saved space. When possible, I try to pack the contents of a room together, but where they don't fit in they must go somewhere else. Frail objects should be packed in cotton, excelsior or wrapped in several thicknesses of paper or cloth, then, where possible, put into pasteboard boxes and securely tied up before packing with other articles."

"Pictures and engravings should be carefully wrapped, first in soft paper, then in several folds of newspapers, tied securely with twine and placed around the four sides of the box, with the glass or face next to the sides of the box. The box should be then packed as firmly as possible with miscellaneous articles, so keeping the pictures in position and insuring their safety. Books, magazines, pamphlets and all those things which every housekeeper has stored away, seldom used, yet valued for various reasons and kept from year to year, may be used as filling. By this plan everything can be securely packed, and nothing need be left behind.—Chicago Record."

The Trimmed Sailor Hat.

The sailor hat is too becoming to be allowed to go out of fashion, but this season it is so loaded down with trimming that it bears little resemblance to its original self.

Of course during midsummer the plain untrimmed hats of this shape will be worn by young girls, and even by some of the older women, although the latter do not patronize them so much as a year or two ago.

There seems to be no fixed law as to what kind of straw is the smartest in sailor hats. The fine straws and the Panamas seem rather more popular, but there are a great many of the rough braid.

The under brim is now covered with a cream net or bound with velvet or made of a contrasting color, and the top or crown is fairly loaded down with flowers. Roses, primroses, lilacs (purple and white), gardenias and cowslips, all and many more are used, and the stiff bows of ribbon or velvet which are interspersed give the needed effect of height. All the hats have the brim turned up at the back, and flowers galore are put in so as to rest against the hair.

A smart sailor hat of fine black straw has a brim faced with white and bound with a roll of black velvet just at the edge. Quantities of pink roses cover the crown and are put under the brim at the back, while stiff, narrow bows of white ribbon and black velvet are put in among the roses. Another hat, the same shape, is of blue straw trimmed with red carnations and black and white ribbon bows, while at the back are knots of bright red gauze, instead of the flowers.

In panama a charming model has a narrow brim bound with black velvet, the crown is encircled with roses of different colors, looking as natural as though just picked. At the left side are narrow ends of black velvet, and at the back the brim is entirely covered with bunches of pink, yellow and red roses closely massed together.

Quite in contrast to these flower gardens is a hat of the sailor shape with black brim and the crown of black and white—a different straw. This is trimmed with black ribbon velvet, and at the left side a bunch of stiff black quills. At the back under the brim are black velvet rosettes. The effect is odd, smart, but yet not becoming to every face, as the lines are decidedly severe.—Harper's Bazaar.

Miss Hillman's Vow.

Miss Lucretia Hillman, a resident of Jacobstown, N. J., has refused to utter a word to any human being during the past ten years, and the chances are that she will not speak again this side of the grave. Her peculiarity is not due to any defect or disease of her vocal organs, but merely a bit of spite against the tyrant man for refusing to give her sex a voice in political affairs.

Ten years ago Miss Hillman was as volatile as any of her sisters—perhaps more so. She was an earnest advocate of woman's suffrage, and in 1886 she refused to pay her tax assessment, and it was not until she was threatened with incarceration in the county jail that she handed over the money. When she had delivered the cash and received a receipt for it, she raised her right hand over her head and declared that she would work from that hour to bring about woman suffrage, and until the right of franchise had been granted to women she would not utter a word to humankind.

She was laughed at, but she kept her vow. Frequent attempts have been made to get her to talk, but without avail. She has contributed a good deal of money to the cause of woman suffrage and feels sure that some day she will be permitted to go to the polls and cast a vote. She owns and manages one of the best farms in the neighborhood. She pays special attention to truck gardening and puts a snug sum away in the bank at the end of each year. She hires men to do most of the work, but it is not unusual to see her mounted on a mowing machine behind a pair of horses, or to find her following a cultivator through a potato field.

Miss Hillman is a stalwart woman, nearly 6 feet high. She is as brown as a berry, has a step as firm as that of a grenadier, and when she gets hold of a plow she handles it as if it were a plaything. She knows all about horses and cows, and she is not to be fooled on any subject that pertains to farming.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Did It Quietly and Well.

It is now four years since the electoral franchise was granted to all women 21 years of age by act of the New Zealand local parliament, and as the parliaments in New Zealand last for three years there have been two general elections in which the women's vote has been a most important factor. It is only just to note that there are no symptoms of public regret at the step thus taken, nor are there, so far, any indications of the change having altered in other respects the ordinary usages of society. On the other hand, it is important to observe that the change was no new idea in New Zealand. It was not the result of female agitation, either through the press or on the platform. There were no "women's rights" leagues organized, nor was any public attempt made to denounce the selfishness of men or to magnify the virtues and intellectual powers of women.

To the persons who have put themselves forward in positions of prominence in the "women's rights" movements in America and Great Britain the attitude of the women of New Zealand would undoubtedly have seemed slow and supine to an extraordinary degree. They held no meetings; they sent no petitions; they published no letters or pamphlets—either to denounce men or to praise women. What they did was to take advantage of every opportunity that was given them of taking part in the management of public affairs and of showing an active and intelligent interest in public questions.—Hon. Hugh H. Lusk in Forum.

Furnishing Country Homes.

There is a curious fancy this year for an immoderate use of an ugly shade of yellow-green in the furnishing of country homes. This very artificial and untrue tint is called "frog green," and is most unharmonious with the greens of nature, and very unbecoming to the human beings who occupy the rooms in which it reigns supreme. It has become such a prevailing fancy that I have heard of persons who have regaled the lower panes of their window sashes to increase the yellow green light which gives the desired tone to the room. The charm must lie in the novelty of the effect, which always has a fascination with a large majority of womankind.

Nothing can be prettier than certain uses of a true natural green in the right place and in due proportion. A wall in green and white, with a frieze of palmetto leaves, I found very effective in a seaside cottage exposed to the sun. The frieze was two feet deep, and the leaves were as large as a palmetto fan, and had a very airy, cool effect. The picture rod was of bamboo, as well as the mantelpiece and much of the furniture. To these were added a few white chairs, white matting and white goat-skin rugs. These bamboo mantelpieces, by the way, are unusual and give the same sort of simple, rural air to a room that the use of wood with its bark upon it gives to a mountain cottage. The mantel may be of pine, stained in a color which matches the bamboo, which can be split and laid on over and under the shelf and fitted to every part of the pine, taking care not to have the joints meet side by side, as putting the canes on irregularly imparts the effect of carving. The entire mantel may be made of whole bamboo and when completed set against the wall, just as you would make "rustic work" from boughs. The beautiful variety of shade and the polished surface of the cane are very decorative.—New York Post.

Everyday Summer Gowns.

Gowns suitable for all purposes will be of cheviot, serge or tweed in plain or mixed colors. The eton jacket, worn with a cotton or silk shirt waist, or merely a false front, is the favorite way of making these gowns. The reefer that buttons or may be reversed is another jacket more suitable for a stout figure, leaving the short bolero for the slender. Mixed goods do not require trimming, and the plain fabrics are lightened with rows, scrolls or hand braiding of hercules or soutache braid. The trimming is arranged according to the material and figure—cross and lengthwise rows on the skirt, in V panels, on the wrists or covering the sleeve to the puff, and on the edge of the jacket only, or completely covering the latter garment.

Small braid covered or large bone buttons are used. Finely twilled serge is preferred. Indistinct plaids are liked in tweeds. Cheviots wear well and are selected for rough traveling suits. I would advise having material intended for hard wear sponged. If one can afford silk for lining the skirt, it will prove light and keep its shape better than anything else. Plaid taffeta waists are very pretty with any of the woolen materials just written of. Select gray, blue, brown or green effects in a figured goods.—Ladies' Home Journal.

The First In the Colony.

Miss Annie J. Duncan has been appointed factory inspector in New South Wales. She will be the first woman factory inspector in that colony. She is well known in London as former sanitary inspector under the Kensington vestry. Miss Duncan is an Australian, the daughter of Dr. Handasyde Duncan, who served for 30 years as immigration and health officer under the government of South Australia. The factories and shop acts which Miss Duncan will be called upon to administer came into existence at the beginning of this year, and they comprise the first legislative enactments of the kind in New South Wales. In two provisions at least they show an advance upon our own factory and shop acts, first, by the compulsory providing of seats for shop assistants in the proportion of at least one seat to every three persons, and, second, by bringing all laundries under the conditions imposed upon factories. Miss Duncan is to be congratulated upon her appointment. She was the successful candidate out of 150 applications for the post.

Various devices for holding a woman's watch securely in some convenient place have been tried with more or less success. The very latest fad of all is the tiny leather bag tag strap with little gold buckle fastened around the belt, and from this the watch is suspended.

TRUSTEES ARE TO ACT

No More Bodies Will Go Over the Hill.

AN OFFICER WILL BE EMPLOYED

If It Is Necessary, to Keep Boys From Making the Place a Playground—Council Is Interested but Will Not Be Called Upon.

The days when the old cemetery can be used as a playground have gone by, and there will be no more desecration.

The trustees have decided that no more bodies shall go over the hill, and if necessary all graves along the edge of the bluff will be opened and the coffins removed to a place where there will be no danger of them mingling with sand and eventually becoming a part of some building. This can be done by moving them back several feet, and as there is sufficient ground for that purpose the trustees propose to act before the next slide. They have also determined that the place shall not be made the favorite resort of boys. If necessary an officer will be employed to keep them out and see that the graveyard is kept free from the crowds of youngsters who gather there during the summer. Members of council have become deeply interested in the matter, and had the trustees not decided upon the new plan it is probable council would have ordered something done on that line.

THE BAND PLAYED

And the Young Woman Was Much Surprised.

A short time ago a young lady who lives in the North Side visited in Carrollton. The rumor had gone forth that she was newly married, and on every hand she met with congratulations. When she left that village the band serenaded her, and the young lady was at a loss to know what it meant until she returned home when her friends informed her of the joke that had been played at her expense.

GOING TO THE WOODS.

Rose; treasurer, W. R. Dawson. The club will go into camp at their grounds in Shelton's grove the early part of July, and will spend three weeks in the woods.

HURT HIS HEAD.

A Lad Fell From the Siding at Thompson's Pottery.

A young lad named Mullen, employed at the Thompson pottery, was hurt about the head this morning, by falling through the coal siding at that place. He was taken in the pottery and laid on a bench, and for a while it was thought his neck was broken. The patrol was called, but before it arrived the lad got up and went to his home. He lives in the East End.

Up to Date.

Hi Henry's Minstrels promise an up-to-date, refined and novel program at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, May 20. Newness and novelty are certainly commendable features in minstrelsy, and, if Mr. Hi. Henry's attractions be as meritorious as the best leading journals concede to them, they should meet with generous encouragement.*

But Don't Hold Your Breath.

The East Liverpool News Review very truthfully remarks that it would be money in the pocket of every Columbian county farmer if some good system of roads was devised and carried out. But just wait till we get electric lines all over the county. The farmers will then be able to get to town without trouble.—Salem News.

Presented With a Piano.

The Cincinnati chamber of commerce will present the Queen city with a handsome piano and a complete set of colors in honor of the boat being named after that thriving town. The presentation will be made the day the boat is launched. She is expected to glide from the ways in about two weeks.

Waiting For Iron.

Workmen are this morning putting the finishing touches on the trolley wire of the new street car line. The wire is now stretched from Rock Spring to Union and Second streets. As the curve to be placed on Union street has not arrived the work is still being delayed.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

A CHICAGO WOMAN'S SUCCESS AT A NOVEL CALLING.

The Trimmed Sailor Hat—Miss Hillman's Vow—Did It Quietly and Well—Furnishing Country Homes—Everyday Summer Gowns—Tips for the Coming Summer.

"Well, I have made a good living at it for more than six years," said Mrs. Sarah D. Kelly, when asked if a woman could make a living as a scientific packer. "I have managed to support and send to school three children, besides laying up a few hundred dollars in the bank against a rainy day.

"My story is about the same as that of many another woman left a widow with children and no money. I looked about for work and approached a man, whom I had known, in hopes of getting a job in his office. There was no opening, and he told me so, but he said his wife had been taken suddenly ill and they were compelled to move the next week. If I wouldn't be insulted by the proposition, he would be glad to have me go to his house, take charge of things and see to the packing and moving. I was not insulted, and when I finished the job I felt pretty certain that I had found my opening. I had a lot of cards printed and distributed them among several firms who made a specialty of moving. Then I went to some real estate offices and furniture stores, explained my object and asked them to speak a good word for me when an opportunity offered. But I didn't sit down and wait for my customers even then, I looked out for myself and when I heard of a family's expecting to move I called and offered my services. Of course I met with rebuffs at first, for people had never heard of such a thing and many of them told me so. But, fortunately for me, there are many delicate and busy women, who find it impossible to superintend the packing and moving of their furniture and valuables. These women recognized the convenience of my proposition and gave me the job.

"Of course in moving, as in everything else, there should be system. And I can say this for myself—that today I am 100 per cent a better packer than when I began, simply because I have studied and systematized. There is one rule which all packers would do well to follow. All articles not absolutely needed in everyday life should be packed first.

"You ask me to tell you how I go about packing for the average well-to-do family. Pretty much as I do for their wealthier neighbors. Of course they are supposed to furnish all boxes and barrels necessary, but when I go through the house and see that there are not enough I order them. The next thing is my index book. I number on each end and all four sides every box and barrel. In my index book, under their respective numbers, I give a complete list of the contents. Suppose you let me read the contents of a box or barrel from this book made out for a family for whom I have just finished packing and storing furniture. They have gone abroad for a three or four years' stay." Then turning to the front of the book, which resembled a small ledger about as much as anything else, "You see, box No. 5 is on page 13," finding the place, "and contains four etchings, one pair of rowlocks, a pair of skates, three children's games, a box with Wedgwood candlesticks, six copies of Harper's Magazine, 1896; two bundles of letters (H. P.), the Pathfinder, Oliver Optic series, and so on," reading what appeared to be an interminable jumble of articles.

"Now this seems a motley collection, but they fitted in, and in that way saved space. When possible, I try to pack the contents of a room together, but where they don't fit in they must go somewhere else. Frail objects should be packed in cotton, excelsior or wrapped in several thicknesses of paper or cloth, then, where possible, put into pasteboard boxes and securely tied up before packing with other articles.

"Pictures and engravings should be carefully wrapped, first in soft paper, then in several folds of newspapers, tied securely with twine and placed around the four sides of the box, with the glass or face next to the sides of the box. The box should be then packed as firmly as possible with miscellaneous articles, so keeping the pictures in position and insuring their safety. Books, magazines, pamphlets and all those things which every housekeeper has stored away, seldom used yet valued for various reasons and kept from year to year, may be used as filling. By this plan everything can be securely packed, and nothing need be left behind.—Chicago Record."

The Trimmed Sailor Hat.

The sailor hat is too becoming to be allowed to go out of fashion, but this season it is so loaded down with trimming that it bears little resemblance to its original self.

Of course during midsummer the plain untrimmed hats of this shape will be worn by young girls, and even by some of the older women, although the latter do not patronize them so much as a year or two ago.

There seems to be no fixed law as to what kind of straw is the smartest in sailor hats. The fine straws and the Panamas seem rather more popular, but there are a great many of the rough braid. The under brim is now covered with a cream net or bound with velvet or made of a contrasting color, and the top or crown is fairly loaded down with flowers. Roses, primroses, lilacs (purple and white), gardenias and cowslips, all and many more are used, and the stiff bows of ribbon or velvet which are interspersed give the needed effect of height. All the hats have the brim turned up at the back, and flowers galore are put in so as to rest against the back of men or to magnify the virtues and intellectual powers of women.

To the persons who have put themselves forward in positions of prominence in the "women's rights" movements in America and Great Britain the attitude of the women of New Zealand would undoubtedly have seemed slow and supine to an extraordinary degree. They held no meetings; they sent no petitions; they published no letters or pamphlets—either to denounce men or to praise women. What they did was to take advantage of every opportunity that was given them of taking part in the management of public affairs and of showing an active and intelligent interest in public questions.—Hon. Hugh H. Lusk in Forum.

Furnishing Country Homes.

There is a curious fancy this year for an immoderate use of an ugly shade of yellow-green in the furnishing of country homes. This very artificial and untrue tint is called "frog green," and is most unharmonious with the greens of nature, and very unbecoming to the human beings who occupy the rooms in which it reigns supreme. It has become such a prevailing fancy that I have heard of persons who have reglazed the lower panes of their window sashes to increase the yellow green light which gives the desired tone to the room. The charm must lie in the novelty of the effect, which always has a fascination with a large majority of womankind.

Nothing can be prettier than certain uses of a true natural green in the right place and in due proportion. A wall in green and white, with a frieze of palmetto leaves, I found very effective in a seaside cottage exposed to the sun. The frieze was two feet deep, and the leaves were as large as a palmetto fan, and had a very airy, cool effect. The picture rod was of bamboo, as well as the mantelpiece and much of the furniture. To these were added a few white chairs, white matting and white goat-skin rugs. These bamboo mantelpieces, by the way, are unusual and give the same sort of simple, rural air to a room that the use of wood with its bark upon it gives to a mountain cottage. The mantel may be of pine, stained in a color which matches the bamboo, which can be split and laid on over and under the shelf and fitted to every part of the pine, taking care not to have the joints meet side by side, as putting the canes on irregularly imparts the effect of carving. The entire mantel may be made of whole bamboo and when completed set against the wall, just as you would make "rustic work" from boughs. The beautiful variety of shade and the polished surface of the cane are very decorative.—New York Post.

Miss Hillman's Vow.

Miss Lucretia Hillman, a resident of Jacobstown, N. J., has refused to utter a word to any human being during the past ten years, and the chances are that she will not speak again this side of the grave. Her peculiarity is not due to any defect or disease of her vocal organs, but merely a bit of spite against the tyrant man for refusing to give her sex a voice in political affairs.

Ten years ago Miss Hillman was as volatile as any of her sisters—perhaps more so. She was an earnest advocate of woman's suffrage, and in 1886 she refused to pay her tax assessment, and it was not until she was threatened with incarceration in the county jail that she handed over the money. When she had delivered the cash and received a receipt for it, she raised her right hand over her head and declared that she would work from that hour to bring about woman suffrage, and until the right of franchise had been granted to women she would not utter a word to humankind.

She was laughed at, but she kept her vow. Frequent attempts have been made to get her to talk, but without avail. She has contributed a good deal of money to the cause of woman suffrage and feels sure that some day she will be permitted to go to the polls and cast a vote. She owns and manages one of the best farms in the neighborhood. She pays special attention to truck gardening and puts a snug sum away in the bank at the end of each year. She hires men to do most of the work, but it is not unusual to see her mounted on a mowing machine behind a pair of horses, or to find her following a cultivator through a potato field.

Miss Hillman is a stalwart woman, nearly 6 feet high. She is as brown as a berry, has a step as firm as that of a grenadier, and when she gets hold of a plow she handles it as if it were a plaything. She knows all about horses and cows, and she is not to be fooled on any subject that pertains to farming.—Exchange.

Did It Quietly and Well.

It is now four years since the electoral franchise was granted to all women 21 years of age by act of the New Zealand local parliament, and as the parliaments in New Zealand last for three years there have been two general elections in which the women's vote has been a most important factor. It is only just to note that there are no symptoms of public regret at the step thus taken, nor are there, so far, any indications of the change having altered in other respects the ordinary usages of society. On the other hand, it is important to observe that the change was no new idea in New Zealand. It was not the result of female agitation, either through the press or on the platform. There were no "women's rights" leagues organized, nor was any public attempt made to denounce the selfish-

BOUGHT SOME BUTTER

Eight Dozens of Eggs and a Box of Blue.

USED HIS LANDLADY'S CREDIT

A Boarder Took Advantage of the Fact That He Often Did the Family's Marketing, and Now They Are Looking For Him With a Grocery Bill.

Harry Seffer, who has been employed on the new street car line, is a much wanted man at present.

He has been boarding at the home of Charles Aley, McKinnon addition, for five weeks, and when he was not working was often sent to the store by Mrs. Aley for provisions. Yesterday afternoon he appeared at the grocery store of William Rough, and asked for six pounds of butter, eight dozen eggs and a box of blue. The order was considered to be an extraordinary one and there was some doubt about letting him have it, but owing to the fact that he had been coming to the store for provisions he was given the goods.

Taking them he went to his boarding house and as Mrs. Aley was out he broke open the front door, and, taking a suit of clothes belonging to Mr. Aley and a valise, the property of Russell Heddleton, departed for parts unknown. Diligent search has been made for the man but he has not been located.

The fellow some time ago had in his possession a fine gold watch which he tried to sell for $15, but could find no purchaser. Investigation proved that he bought it on the installment plan, and paid $5 down, and the agent for a jewelry house had never been able to locate him until a short time ago, when he was relieved of the necessity of making payments, the jewelry house taking back its property.

SOME LIVERPOOL CASES

Occupied the Attention of Common Pleas Today.

LISBON, May 18.—[Special]—The case of the First National bank, of East Liverpool, against Burton & Williams, has been reported settled out of court, and was this morning withdrawn from the files. It was to recover $600 on a note given John Garner and E. Devon, three years ago.

R. M. Burns has sued Hiram C. Rigby and E. C. Adams, asking judgment for $300 on a note. Rigby secured the note by a mortgage, but since sold the property to Adams, who agreed to assume the liability. The Potters' Building and Savings company, Moses Collear and Lavina Arbuckle claim some interest in the premises.

The case of the East Liverpool Pottery company against Joseph Deakin has been dismissed. It was filed for the purpose of declaring void a note for $2,500.

The court has authorized the Christian church, of Liverpool, to borrow $3,500.

A levy has been made by Sheriff Gill on a part of lot 543 in Liverpool, belonging to John W. Patterson, to satisfy a judgment for $125, rendered in Squire Rose's court last April, in favor of Orr's Sons.

Is the Sultan Mad?

A curious story, said to be well authenticated, is going the rounds of the European press and explains much that is mysterious in the sultan's conduct. Two days before the Bairam festival, so the tale runs, an aid-de-camp went to Abdul Hamid's room for orders and found him walking up and down with wild gesticulations and incoherent murmurs. As soon as the sultan caught sight of the officer he exclaimed: "Son of a dog, what are you doing here? Do you not see that I am conversing with my father?" The aid-de-camp, in great alarm, was about to withdraw, when Abdul Hamid stopped him, saying, "Prostrate yourself before my father and then execute his commands."

Down dropped the trembling officer on his knees, awaiting the development of events with intense anxiety. A quarter of an hour later his horrible suspense came to an end, for the commander of the faithful, bringing his promenade to an abrupt close, threw himself on a divan, and, looking around the chamber, relieved the mind of the aid-de-camp by inquiring what he was doing and why he had come. The sultan had completely forgotten the previous scene.

Window plants should not be taken out to the garden and syringed with cold water when in bloom. It will check the flowers and may destroy them altogether.

TWO MARTIAL POEMS.

Soon after the close of the civil war Cassius M. Clay, T. C. Durant of the Union Pacific railroad, Commodore Boggs, Curtis Guild, the secretary of the Russian minister, and two other gentlemen were guests at a little supper at the Fifth Avenue hotel, New York. The conversation turned upon Tennyson's "Charge of the Light Brigade," which one of the guests declared to be the most martial poem ever written.

"Bah!" exclaimed one of the company, half in jest. "The rhythm is faulty, and some of the lines remind me of pumpkins rolling over a barn floor. For instance:

"Some one had blundered,
Rode the six hundred!"

"I defy any one to name an American poem so inspiring," retorted the enthusiastic lover of the British poet. Mr. Guild, who reports the conversation in his "Chat About Celebrities," suggested that there was Holmes' poem of "Old Ironsides."

"Do you know the lines?" was demanded.

"Oh, yes. I declaimed them more than 30 years ago at school."

"Well, I challenge you to recite 'Old Ironsides,' and I will recite 'The Charge of the Light Brigade,' and we will abide by the verdict of the company as to which is the more inspiring."

"The Charge" was recited first, and it was done admirably. At its conclusion, after the applause had ceased, Mr. Guild began back in "A Metrical Essay," in which the author re-presented the poem with an introduction and then followed it with the well known verses, beginning:

Aye, tear her tattered ensign down!

"By the time," he writes, "I was half through the first verse I saw the face of Commodore Boggs light up and his eye flash. Cash Clay, too, was all attention. The poet's lines had their effect. As the disclaimer ended with

"Nail to the mast her holy flag,
Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the god of storms,
The lightning and the gale,

the brave old commodore brought down his fist on the table, exclaiming, 'That's so, by Jupiter!' and Clay leaped to his feet, shouting, 'Hurrah for the American flag!' —Youth's Companion.

FRENCHY.

A 5-year-old who happened to be present when his auntie's new hat came home the other day was much impressed by the praise accorded it on all sides. One word, however, puzzled him. "Beautiful" and "sweet" and "elegant"—all these terms were clear enough, but when it came to "Frenchy" he was at a loss to know what was meant. "What does 'Frenchy' mean, mamma?" he asked. "What is 'Frenchy'?" His mother therefore explained that "Frenchy" meant all the other nice things that had been said about the hat and more too. It was the weight of worldly eminence. "When you wish to say that a thing is particularly pretty and graceful and artistic, when you want to give it the very highest praise," she said, "you call it 'Frenchy'."

To all of which the 5-year-old listened with that intent literalness indicative of his species. Some days after this, when the arrival of the hat had presumably been forgotten by every one, the 5-year-old, with his aunt, attended divine service at a well known ritualistic church for the first time. Upon his return his mother asked him what he thought of it all. "Oh, I liked it so much!" was the answer. "It was so Frenchy!"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The case of the East Liverpool Pottery company against Joseph Deakin has been dismissed. It was filed for the purpose of declaring void a note for $2,500.

The court has authorized the Christian church, of Liverpool, to borrow $3,500.

A levy has been made by Sheriff Gill on a part of lot 543 in Liverpool, belonging to John W. Patterson, to satisfy a judgment for $125, rendered in Squire Rose's court last April, in favor of Orr's Sons.

She saw John Adams.

At a recent celebration in Boston Mrs. Julia Ward Howe "sweet and gracious as ever," gave a delightful reminiscence of her once seeing John Adams, "something which," she said, "perhaps no one else in the company is old enough to have done. When I was 6 years old, I was brought to visit my maternal grandmother, living at Quincy. The children of the Quincy family, in taking me about the town, once led me into a room in which there was a man who looked to me then very, very old. He wore a black silk skullcap. My guides, pointing him out to me, said: 'Look! Look! That's John Adams, who has been president of the United States.' I don't think the fact that he had been president meant much to my mind then, but his appearance and the manner of the children made a profound impression on me."—Woman's Journal.

VARIED MATRIMONY.

It was the boast of Levi Rogers, who died at Perry, O. T., the other day, that he had been married seven times and that each wife had been of a different nationality. Rogers was born in Georgia, and when a young man married an American girl, who died within six months. After that he married six times, his successive wives being Mexican, Bohemian, Indian, German, creole and finally a very black negress. The latter survives him, and Rogers always claimed that she was the best wife of the whole collection.

BOUGHT SOME BUTTER

Eight Dozens of Eggs and a Box of Blue.

USED HIS LANDLADY'S CREDIT

A Boarder Took Advantage of the Fact That He Often Did the Family's Marketing, and Now They Are Looking For Him With a Grocery Bill.

Harry Seffer, who has been employed on the new street car line, is a much wanted man at present.

He has been boarding at the home of Charles Aley, McKinnon addition, for five weeks, and when he was not working was often sent to the store by Mrs. Aley for provisions. Yesterday afternoon he appeared at the grocery store of William Rough, and asked for six pounds of butter, eight dozen eggs and a box of blue. The order was considered to be an extraordinary one and there was some doubt about letting him have it, but owing to the fact that he had been coming to the store for provisions he was given the goods.

Taking them he went to his boarding house and as Mrs. Aley was out he broke open the front door, and, taking a suit of clothes belonging to Mr. Aley and a valise, the property of Russell Heddleton, departed for parts unknown. Diligent search has been made for the man but he has not been located.

The case of the East Liverpool Pottery company against Joseph Deakin has been dismissed. It was filed for the purpose of declaring void a note for $2,500.

In the Sultan Mad?

A curious story, said to be well authenticated, is going the rounds of the European press and explains much that is mysterious in the sultan's conduct. Two days before the Bairam festival, so the tale runs, an aid-de-camp went to Abdul Hamid's room for orders and found him walking up and down with wild gesticulations and incoherent murmurs. As soon as the sultan caught sight of the officer he exclaimed: "Son of a dog, what are you doing here? Do you not see that I am conversing with my father?" The aid-de-camp, in great alarm, was about to withdraw, when Abdul Hamid stopped him, saying, "Prostrate yourself before my father and then execute his commands."

Down dropped the trembling officer on his knees, awaiting the development of events with intense anxiety. A quarter of an hour later his horrible suspense came to an end, for the commander of the faithful, bringing his promenade to an abrupt close, threw himself on a divan, and, looking around the chamber, relieved the mind of the aid-de-camp by inquiring what he was doing and why he had come. The sultan had completely forgotten the previous scene.

TWO MARTIAL POEMS.

Soon after the close of the civil war Cassius M. Clay, T. C. Durant of the Union Pacific railroad, Commodore Boggs, Curtis Guild, the secretary of the Russian minister, and two other gentlemen were guests at a little supper at the Fifth Avenue hotel, New York. The conversation turned upon Tennyson's "Charge of the Light Brigade," which one of the guests declared to be the most martial poem ever written.

"Bah!" exclaimed one of the company, half in jest. "The rhythm is faulty, and some of the lines remind me of pumpkins rolling over a barn floor. For instance:

"Some one had blundered,
Rode the six hundred!"

"I defy any one to name an American poem so inspiring," retorted the enthusiastic lover of the British poet. Mr. Guild, who reports the conversation in his "Chat About Celebrities," suggested that there was Holmes' poem of "Old Ironsides."

"Do you know the lines?" was demanded.

"Oh, yes. I declaimed them more than 30 years ago at school."

"Well, I challenge you to recite 'Old Ironsides,' and I will recite 'The Charge of the Light Brigade,' and we will abide by the verdict of the company as to which is the more inspiring."

"The Charge" was recited first, and it was done admirably. At its conclusion, after the applause had ceased, Mr. Guild began back in "A Metrical Essay," in which the author re-presented the poem with an introduction and then followed it with the well known verses, beginning:

"Aye, tear her tattered ensign down!"

"By the time," he writes, "I was half through the first verse I saw the face of Commodore Boggs light up and his eye flash. Cash Clay, too, was all attention. The poet's lines had their effect. As the disclaimer ended with

"'Nail to the mast her holy flag,
Set every threadbare sail,
And give her to the god of storms,
The lightning and the gale,'

the brave old commodore brought down his fist on the table, exclaiming, 'That's so, by Jupiter!' and Clay leaped to his feet, shouting, 'Hurrah for the American flag!' — Youth's Companion.

FRENCHY.

A 5-year-old who happened to be present when his auntie's new hat came home the other day was much impressed by the praise accorded it on all sides. One word, however, puzzled him. "Beautiful" and "sweet" and "elegant"—all these terms were clear enough, but when it came to "Frenchy" he was at a loss to know what was meant. "What does 'Frenchy' mean, mamma?" he asked. "What is 'Frenchy'?" His mother therefore explained that "Frenchy" meant all the other nice things that had been said about the hat and more too. It was the weight of worldly eminence. "When you wish to say that a thing is particularly pretty and graceful and artistic, when you want to give it the very highest praise," she said, "you call it 'Frenchy.'"

To all of which the 5-year-old listened with that intent literalness indicative of his species. Some days after this, when the arrival of the hat had presumably been forgotten by every one, the 5-year-old, with his aunt, attended divine service at a well known ritualistic church for the first time. Upon his return his mother asked him what he thought of it all. "Oh, I liked it so much!" was the answer. "It was so Frenchy!" — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

She Saw John Adams.

At a recent celebration in Boston Mrs. Julia Ward Howe "sweet and gracious as ever," gave a delightful reminiscence of her once seeing John Adams, "something which," she said, "perhaps no one else in the company is old enough to have done. When I was 6 years old, I was brought to visit my maternal grandmother, living at Quincy. The children of the Quincy family, in taking me about the town, once led me into a room in which there was a man who looked to me then very, very old. He wore a black silk skullcap. My guides, pointing him out to me, said: 'Look! Look! That's John Adams, who has been president of the United States.' I don't think the fact that he had been president meant much to my mind then, but his appearance and the manner of the children made a profound impression on me." — Woman's Journal.

Varied Matrimony.

It was the boast of Levi Rogers, who died at Perry, O. T., the other day, that he had been married seven times and that each wife had been of a different nationality. Rogers was born in Georgia, and when a young man married an American girl, who died within six months. After that he married six times, his successive wives being Mexican, Bohemian, Indian, German, creole and finally a very black negress. The latter survives him, and Rogers always claimed that she was the best wife of the whole collection.
